Changing Government in 1,000 Years, Maybe
A World of Mystery

THE WORLD goes along quietly for a while, then suddenly everything whirls around like the changes in the kaleidoscope.

The King of Denmark has just requested a Socialist Labor leader, T. Stauning, to form a new Cabinet.

In England, George, cousin of the Danish King, has a Labor leader running his Cabinet.

You know the kind of lively administration they have off in Northeastern Russia.

And down in the Southeast in Italy they have a powerful man with an iron jaw, Mussolini, running both King and the country, knocking Socialism and union labor on the head.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEE on Island Affairs proposes to give the Philippines their freedom—government by themselves, ownership and control of their country in 1950, twenty-six years hence.

Many things will happen between now and 1950, so let it go at that—liberty in twenty-six years.

BUT WHOEVER in that Congressional Committee imagines that a nation, three-quarters barbarous, 90 per cent. steeped in deepest superstition, can get mentally in shape to govern itself in twenty-six years, doesn't know much about the slow processes of civilization.

The kind of people that live in this country have been trying to govern themselves for 2,000 years. And look at us now with our oil scandal, and a government in which a few, keen and prosperous, let little people know what they may and may not do.

IF YOU THINK it takes only a short time to learn self-government yourself, look at Egypt. The British Empire recently said to the Egyptians: "Go ahead and govern yourselves." A careful observer reports that Egypt is going down hill, toward the old listless poverty and shiftlessness with frightful rapidity. Cairo streets are dirty, hotels are closing, the natives express their patriotism by insulting foreigners that come to spend money. Self-government is not so easily learned.

THE PHILIPPINES will know, perhaps, how to govern themselves efficiently and thoroughly 1,000 years from now—the people of the United States, perhaps, in half that time.

THIS IS a world of mysteries. We send messages by electricity, and we don't know what electricity is—only what it does. We send radio music and messages through the air without wires and say it goes through the "ether." We don't know what the ether is, and cannot even prove that it EXISTS.

NOW DR. BANTING, a brilliant scientist who discovered insulin, cure for diabetes, says that, having discovered it, he is doing his VERY best now to find out what it IS. One thing sure, it is an expensive product.

Pure insulin, enough to make a nice little pile on a twenty-five cent piece, would cost half a million dollars.

IN OUR HOME politics the important question is, what will Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, do?

The country in its finances needs his knowledge, skill and determination.

President Harding made mistakes; very likely the angels do sometimes. But he made up for several of them in obtaining for

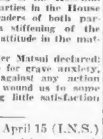
Senate's Stand on Exclusion Bill Balks Tokio Plan to Control Hawaiians

Tokio, April 15 (A.P.).—A cabinet meeting was held today to discuss the American immigration problem, after which, according to vernacular newspapers, "new important instructions" were sent to Japanese Ambassador Hanihara at Washington. The question was considered also of a meeting of the Kenseikai and Chuwakai parties in the House of Peers and leaders of both parties demanded a stiffening of the Foreign Office's attitude in the matter.

Foreign Minister Matsui declared: "We have cause for grave anxiety, and we appeal against any action which can only wound us to some extent and bring little satisfaction to America."

Washington, April 15 (I.N.S.)—Its fighting spirit aroused, Congress prepared today to call Japan's hand by passing the exclusion act which erects an impenetrable legal barrier to the future entrance of Japanese immigrants into the United States and possessions.

The temper of Congress became so plain today that the recall of Masano Hanihara, the Japanese ambassador looms as a possible sequel to the passage of the exclusion legislation.



Masano Hanihara.

The House already has acted by a vote of more than four to one in favor of excluding Japanese.

The Senate, angry and determined, will endorse the House's action by an even larger vote, it was said.

Even administration leaders such as Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania and others, declared that Hanihara's blunt threat of "grave consequences" in Japanese-American relations was a challenge to the sovereignty of the United States that cannot be ignored.

In view of the size of the vote it seemed doubtful today whether President Coolidge will be constrained to veto the measure.

Congressional leaders said privately it would make but little difference if presidential disapproval was

$20,000 BLAZE AT SALISBURY

Newburyport, April 15.—Fire, believed by the police to be the work of a firebug, destroyed five cottages at Salisbury Beach.

The cottages destroyed were: "The Liberty Bell" and "The Livingstone," owned by George Mongeau of Lowell; "The Grecian, No. 1," and "The Grecian, No. 2," owned by Sophie Grecian of Lawrence, and a cottage owned by O. D. Young of Haverhill.

All five cottages were situated at the extreme southern end of the beach. The loss is set at $20,000.

Following the fire, that threatened because of a stiff wind, to spread to other summer homes, the police arrested a man who, they claim, had been sleeping in the cottage where the fire started.

The arrest followed a "tip" given the police by a neighbor. He is being held as a suspicious person. Thus far efforts to learn his name have been unsuccessful.

The fire started in one of the Greichen cottages and flames quickly swept to the other four.

Low water pressure handicapped the Salisbury firemen and aid was summoned from Newburyport, Amesbury and Hampton Beach.

WIDOW DENIES HOLDING HANDS

Denial that she had ever held hands with Harry S. Bradstreet, Boston broker, as testified to by his wife, was made today in Superior Court by Mrs. Alice F. Wallace, New Hampshire's richest widow.

She is defendant in a $250,000 alienation suit brought by Mrs. Laura Bradstreet of Bay State road.

Mrs. Wallace gave brief testimony regarding an automobile trip taken by herself and Mr. and Mrs. Brad street through the White Mountains, returning to the Wallace estate in Rochester.

Here, Mrs. Bradstreet had testified, she saw Mrs. Wallace take Bradstreet's hand and hold and squeeze it.

"Did you hold hands with Mr. Bradstreet?" asked Mrs. Wallace's counsel today in direct examination. "No," she answered decidedly.

Letters written by Mrs. Wallace to the Boston broker, in which she addressed him as "Dear T. & T." and "Dear C. S.," were read in excerpts by her counsel while she was on the stand.

In explanation of these forms of salutation, the widow said:

"Well, we used to very jokingly refer to our positions in the so-called two-share corporation. We referred to him as corresponding secretary and to myself as president."

She began to explain the "T. & T.", but got only as far as saying one of the "T's" meant treasurer, when she changed the subject of her testimony.

An excerpt from one letter caused considerable discussion. This read: "There is an airplane going by now and every time it sails out over the water, I have a most wonderful sensation down my spine."

A discussion arose over placing and proper reading of the sentence as affected by the comma. After this had been settled, Attorney Grut asked Mrs. Wallace:

"Did that wonderful sensation down your spine refer to anything else but the airplane?" "Of course not," she answered, with a little laugh. "I wanted to go up in that airplane, but my family did not want me to."

Dressed in a plainly tailored blue suit with white pencilled stripes and a black turban hat, Mrs. Wallace looked anything but her 55 years as she stepped onto the witness stand and started her story.

Chronologically she started the story of her business relations with

They're off in a cloud of dust.

Another baseball campaign is away, to wage with classic excitement until far off October.

The Red Sox, a new and better ball club, played the world's champion Yankees at Fenway Park.

Lee Fohl was out to get a flying start for his Fenway team, the outfit he expects to churn up all kinds of excitement in the American League.

Babe Ruth was swinging at the fences, anxious to start a new home-run string in the same park that helped to make him famous.

Howard Ehmke was anxious to win his opening game, to establish a beginning for a record that will make his last year's splendid performance look like nothing at all.

$1,000,000 'SHORTSTOP'

Dudley Lee, millionaire shortstop, was making his Boston bow, starting a season that will probably make him a national sensation before long.

This was a big baseball day all over the lot, and especially right here in Boston.

The game has come back, and Fenway Park was to be jammed with a throng that would remind all

SAFE IN MARLBORO CRACKED; $1250 GONE

Marlboro, April 15.—Burglars blew a safe in the Sherman laundry at No. 26 Main street today and escaped with $1,200 in securities and $50 cash. They carried the 1,200-pound safe from the front of the laundry to the sorting room in the rear, placing it on a pile of clothes and piling other clothes on top to deaden the impact. Because of the weight of the safe, police believe that at least four men took part.

WILLIE MEHEGAN

Four-year-old Willie Mehegan is in City Hospital, and Mrs. Ruby F. Williams, with whom he boarded at No. 351 Main street, Charlestown, is in jail in default of $2,000 bonds, because Willie's thumbs are cut to the bone and his lower body is a mass of bruises. In court, Mrs. Williams admitted that she had fastened the boy by the thumbs to a staple 5 feet 6 inches from the floor, and that he was torn as punishment for throwing papers into the street from her front window.

BRUTAL TO HIS PET RABBITS

Slayer of White Also Showed Much Interest in Women Visitors, the Testimony Shows

Philadelphia, April 15.—Harry K. Thaw's conduct with his pet rabbits "Tweedledums" and "Tootsie" and his comments on attractive women visitors at the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases in West Philadelphia, where he has been confined seven years, were described at his sanity trial in Common Pleas Court today.

The testimony followed the first day's story from the records of Kirkbride's Hospital for mental and nervous diseases, a strange story of torture, stranger even than the old testimony of whippings of human beings, for the victims of Thaw in this latest instance were pet rabbits.

Dr. Charles K. Mills, alienist employed by the Thaw forces, was under cross-examination by Arthur G. Dickson, representing the trustees of the estate of Harry's father.

Dr. Mills has testified with considerable emphasis that he believed Thaw to be now sane. He was asked:

"In forming your judgment as to the sanity of Thaw, did you take into consideration the carefully kept account of all the patient's sayings

Great Britain Has Accepted Dawes Debt Plan

London, April 15 (I.N.S.)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that Great Britain was prepared to support the Dawes reparation plan in its entirety provided the other interested nations did likewise.

"The British government is greatly satisfied with the experts' report," continued the Premier. "It is unbiased and a carefully thought out endeavor to aid the governments concerned."

CONGRESS READY TO TEACH JAPANESE LESSON ON EXCLUSION

RECALL OF TOKIO'S ENVOY MAY FOLLOW DISPUTE

expressed—that the Hanihara letter has so solidified sentiment in Congress that message over a veto is certain.

Japan's ambition to get complete possession of the Hawaiian Islands, and not injury to her pride, is the real foundation of her threat of "grave consequences" if Congress votes to exclude her nationals.

This single move on the part of the Tokio government in the present controversy over the Johnson immigration bill was pointed out today by Representative Albert Johnson, Republican, of Washington, chairman of the House Immigration Committee. He said:

"Ambassador Hanihara, in his letter of April 10, states that Japan is not covered by the 'gentlemen's agreement.' When the letters which comprise the agreement were written, did not then Secretary of State Forgat that Hawaii was a part of territory of the United States?

"Can we not see that it is not so much the pride of Japan that is hurt? Is it not Japan's ambition to possess Hawaii by colonization that is crushed? The children of oriental immigrants, born in Hawaii are, of course, American citizens.

"Everybody soon will see that the provisions of the Johnson bill apply to every part and parcel of the United States where our flag flies, including Hawaii. And because they do, the bill hurts not the pride, but the ambition of Japan. Make no mistake about that."

BANKED ON HUGHES.

It was further pointed out by the leaders in the fight for the Japanese exclusion provision that should Hanihara's letter and Secretary Hughes' reply, declaring the Japanese ambassador's interpretation of the "gentlemen's agreement" conforms to his own understanding, be allowed to stand without question, Hawaii would be left to her fate with Congress precluded by the agreement from legislating in the future to free the islands from Tokio Domination.

Just let this correspondence stand, it was stressed, and every time anything is said about keeping the Japanese out of Hawaii, Tokio will rise up and point to Secretary Hughes' acceptance of its interpretation that the islands are outside the agreement and, therefore, open to Japanese immigration without limit.

There were frequent suggestions from immigration committee leaders and Pacific coast members that the touring of Mr. Hughes on record to this effect probably was the subtle hope of the Japanese, rather than starting off the proposal to prohibit their entry into continental United States. If the present bill should fail and the Hanihara-Hughes correspondence stand, nothing could keep the Japanese from overrunning Hawaii.

Japanese "Amazed" at Action of U. S. Senators

Tokio, April 15 (I.N.S.).—Amazement and disbelief were shown in every section of the foreign office today when extras were carried to all side flashing the action of the United States senate on the immigration bill.

One high official said the situation was too grave for him to make a statement. It was said a statement was being drafted by the cabinet to be issued late today by Premier Ishii.

It is generally admitted here that Ambassador Hanihara's note was expected to bring the matter to a head, and the Senate's action is stronger and quicker than was expected. It is believed probable that the foreign office now regrets its publicity because of the fear of inflaming the Japanese people throughout the empire.

No blame can be attached to Ambassador Hanihara in the matter of the contents of his note was known three weeks ago and approved. It is considered possible that the note was framed through a desire of certain sections of the Japanese government to secure a final decision on the immigration question.

"The first impression is that this action of the American Congress merely represents an expression of anti-Japanism," said the Chugai Shogio; on the second consideration, however, it appears the American nation overestimates its own importance in the family of nations and thirdly we must say that if they accuse Ambassador Hanihara of lack of diplomacy, we feel his attitude fades into weakness in comparison to the irresponsibility of the American Congress."

The press announcing disapproval of the gentlemen's agreement by the United States Senate brought the masses into closer touch with the anti-alien situation. The news changed an air of confidence to one of pessimism, the public generally having believed the Senate would reverse the House action.

Jap Army and Navy Cut $27,000,000 This Year

Tokio, March 27 (A.P.).—A reduction of $27,000,000 in appropriations for the army and navy, as compared with the amounts expended by the two services in the fiscal year just ending, is shown in the "working estimates" for the fiscal year 1924-1925, just published by the government.

Of the total of $675,500,000 appropriated for the new year, $118,000,000 will go to the navy and $86,000,000 to the army, as compared with the appropriations of $135,000,000 and $103,000,000 for the navy and army, respectively, for the fiscal year 1923-1924.

The working estimates are actually the government's budget for the next fiscal year, beginning April 1, 1924, and ending March 31, 1925.

They differ from an ordinary budget in that they have not been passed by the Diet, since that body was dissolved in disorder January 21, before it had really started to work.

The Japanese constitution provides that when for any cause the Diet fails to approve the budget for the ensuing fiscal year the budget for the preceding year automatically goes into effect for another year. This applies only to the total amount.

Appropriations for the several departments may be shifted to meet requirements.

POLICE STOP STRIKE RALLY AT DOVER, N. H.

Dover, N. H., April 15.—Pickets of the One Big Union among strikers of the Pacific Mills turned out in force near the cotton house of the mills and staged a demonstration until they were dispersed by the police.

It was reported the strikers plan to continue the picketing each day until, in the words of one of the leaders, "the courts decide that the strikers have no right to picket."

Police insist that under the New Hampshire law, even peaceful picketing is prohibited.

$5,000 FIRE AT EVERETT OIL PLANT

A fire in a still containing 25,000 gallons of gasoline at the plant of the Beacon Oil Company, Beacon street, Everett, caused a loss estimated at $5,000 and necessitated the alarms calling aid from Revere. The blaze was preceded by an explosion, caused, it is believed, by overheating of the still. The plant is located about a mile from the scene of the big fire of Monday.

ALCOHOL POISONING WAS ACCIDENTAL

Lawrence, April 15.—Accidental acute alcohol poisoning" has been given as the cause of the death of Mrs. May Anna Moll, 56 years old, of No. 486 Common st., whose body was found in a room in which she had lived. Mrs. Moll came to this city from Poland 14 years ago

Here's Proposed Act That Aroused Japanese

"No alien ineligible to citizenship shall be admitted to the United States."

The foregoing is the clause in the immigration bill that affects Japan.

It is intended to apply to coolies, laborers who break down American standards of living. The bill makes provision for the admission of students, tourists and business men.

The people on the Pacific Coast do not find that the "Gentlemen's agreement" has worked to keep Japanese laborers out. The new law will put an end to the picture-bride evil on the coast, and stop the influx of Japanese into the Hawaiian Islands, saving this part of the United States also for white people. The Japanese have practically gained control there.

CHARGES THAW WAS CRUEL TO HIS PETS

Asylum Witness Says Famous Prisoner Subjected Rabbits to Tortures

and doings while under restraint here?"

"I presume I did."

"Did you consider the fact that the report of his conduct in the hospital included the statement that he took his two pet rabbits by their legs, whirling them around and threw them about forty feet, laughed and said that they were not hurt? And did you take also into consideration the fact that he would throw them up in the air and catch them, slapping them when they made any noise, calling one 'Poodle' and the other 'Tweedledum.'

"Also that he pinched them until they squealed and bit them with his teeth; that he would chase them with a pole until they were exhausted and that when they were not prompt to submit to being picked up, he would punish them?"

Dr. Mills was quick to make an excuse for these actions of the Pittsburg millionaire. He said:

"Well, he was in the hospital for seven years and without much to amuse or entertain him and the pet rabbits did amuse him perhaps."

Dickson then showed that the entry about the rabbits was made in 1918, the first year of his seven in the Kirkbride institution.

AFTER LASHING GUMP

He was committed there after he had lashed Frederick Gump, a boy in a New York hotel, and had then attempted suicide by slashing his throat and wrists with a razor.

When these entries from the observations of the hospital attendants were read Thaw's brow became heavy with perspiration, his features, which are now puffed and of an unwholesome dark color, were twisted and his eyes large and glassy, as they were eighteen years ago when his life of wild dissipation reached a climax with the killing of Stanford White, rolled in their sockets.

His collar was wilted and his necktie out of place. Previously he had seemed at ease and had carried himself with an air of assurance, chatting with his lawyers.

But with the first questions from Dickson he realized that he was up against an able lawyer and a cross-examiner of high intelligence and quick wit.

Dickson did not spare Thaw. He kept at the records and brought out the fact that the attendants observing him noticed that when he would punish the rabbits or maltreat them gratuitously his clothes would be unkempt, that he would be in a state of high excitement, that he would lose control of himself almost entirely.

When these moods came on him his viciousness to the dumb things would increase.

GENTLER MOMENTS.

The hospital observers also wrote down that when there was any work to be done for the care of his pets he would gladly do it for them but he would not do any other kind of work that might have been meant for his health of body.

When he was gentle with the rabbits he would hold their heads to his and talk to them, asking them what they were saying.

"He would treat them as if they did actually talk to him" one line read.

Thaw and his mother will take the stand in his fight for freedom from the insane asylum and restoration of his fortune of between five and six million dollars.

Thaw's counsel, ex-Judge Patterson, made this announcement:

"Harry K. Thaw will take the stand himself and let you see for yourselves how he acts and will let you judge by his speech and manner.

"We will call the one more interested in his welfare than any other living soul and who would be the first to see that he did not get out if he were apt to harm anybody—his venerable mother, who seven years ago asked that he be confined.

"Now she is satisfied that he has fully recovered his reason and will lead the life of a good, upright citizen."

Returning to Dr. Mills, Dickson asked whether he thought a flagellant a safe man to turn loose on the community.

The alienist did not reply directly. He said that he had talked to Thaw about the Gump beating but that he had gotten nothing satisfactory about it from him.

He declared that he really knew nothing about that end of the case except what he had gotten out of the newspapers. As to morality and insanity, the witness testified that there were, unfortunately, many highly immoral men who were not insane. He added:

"But Thaw is not insane as I know insanity and he is not constitutionally inferior. I would say that he had a high order of mental ability.

Thaw's Life a Story of Gold and Vicious Living

Philadelphia, April 15.—The present Harry K. Thaw trial may be the last chapter in the story of wealth, mental decay, vicious living, murder and insane asylums. In brief here is a chronology of the tragedy:

Thaw, born in Pittsburgh in 1879, came into the limelight in 1891, when he was "allowed" to leave Harvard after he had been in poker games for exorbitant stakes. He left Princeton after another scrimmage.

In 1901 he met Evelyn Nesbit, a Pittsburgh lawyer's daughter, employed in New York as a model and he also had been on the stage. In 1903 he followed her to Europe and in Christmas Eve of that year married her in Pittsburgh.

June 25, 1906, he shot and killed Stanford White, famous New York architect, on the Madison Square Garden roof.

ADJUDGED AS INSANE.

Thaw's trial for the murder of White started January 23, 1907. On April 12 the jury disagreed. On January 8, 1908, his second trial began.

February 1, 1908, Thaw was acquitted on the ground of insanity, and was incarcerated in Matteawan. August 17, 1913, he escaped from Matteawan into Canada.

The fugitive was captured the following day in Canada, and deported March 13, 1915, he was acquitted of a charge of conspiracy.

TRIED TO END LIFE.

July 14, 1915, Thaw was declared sane by a New York Supreme Court jury.

January 9, 1917, he was arrested in New York on a charge of assaulting Frederick Gump, Jr., of Kansas City.

January 11, 1917, he attempted to commit suicide by slashing his throat with a razor at No. 5269 Wall nut street, Philadelphia.

May, 1917, he was removed to the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases, where he has been since, except for brief visits to his mother in Pittsburgh.

Thaw, Heavy Set and Gray, Looks Like Pallbearer

New York, April 15.—Harry K. Thaw today is an immense man, with large features, thick hands and gray hair, which stands up from his forehead in a pompadour.

There are pouches and dark circles beneath his protuberant eyes. His cheeks are so full they appear swollen and his skin is dark and sallow.

He appears as dignified as a pallbearer, except for his large restless eyes.

WALSH FLAYS IMMIGRATION MEASURE

Bay State Senator Declares It Is Slap at Poles, Jews and Italians

Washington, April 15 (I.N.S.).—Senator David I. Walsh today flayed the new immigration bill as an unjust attack upon the character of the Italians, Jews, Poles and other people from the Mediterranean states.

"Through so-called gentleman's agreements and other diplomatic channels," he declared, "we have sought to avoid the appearance of any discriminatory attitude toward Japan. We think that the peoples and governments of Italy, Poland, Hungary, Austria, Greece or Rumania have less national pride than Japan?"

Senator Walsh said he stood firmly for the right of a nation to determine who may come within its gates. But the present bill is a hodge-podge, he said, which also contains a slap in the face at so many good citizens of foreign birth.

"If I were convinced," he added, "that the admission of immigrants to this country could in the slightest degree imperil the safety of our institutions and the prosperity of enjoyment of our works, I would advocate not lessening immigration but restricting it."

MOTORCYCLIST HELD FOR DEATH OF MAN

Lawrence, April 15 (I.N.S.).—Fred Raitt of North Andover pleaded not guilty when arraigned today charged with manslaughter. He was held in $1,000 for a later hearing. Raitt is alleged to have struck James Tinker, seventy-three, while operating his motorcycle.

SPENT FORTUNE IN HUNT FOR MADONNA, LOST ART TREASURE

HUB MAN PENNILESS BY SEARCH

Lives Alone With Napoleon's Priceless Raphael Unearthed in Mansion

Buried treasure!

Many men, lured by the hope of riches, have dug deep in the sands for pirates' gold.

But here is one man, who lured only by a love of beauty, searched more than a quarter of a century and gave a fortune to find a lost treasure of art.

Finally, in an attic, buried under the dust of eighty-one years, he found it.

Thirty years ago, Patrick E. Duffee stood before a picture in a gallery in France. It was a copy of Raphael's "Madonna Gonzaga," the lost Madonna."

AFTER 30 YEAR QUEST.

There were friends with him. The admiration for the picture was intense. Suddenly Patrick Duffee declared quietly, "Some day I'm going to own the original of that."

Today in a little studio at No. 344 Boylston street, hangs the real "lost Madonna." The man who owns it has nothing in the world but that picture. He gave his youth to find it and his fortune to own it. It is never unguarded. Patrick Duffee, lover of art, lives with his priceless painting.

Thirty years ago Patrick Duffee started his search. Europe had no trace of the treasure, but America still gave clues to its location. Every possible place suggested by rumor or person was investigated.

SAW 150 OTHERS.

In twenty-six years 150 copies of the picture were examined by Mr. Duffee. Of that 150, twenty-five were believed by their owners to be genuine.

In poor homes were copies. Some penniless art lover treasured a false picture, believing that within his shabby home was the painting that had hung in the halls of kings.

From Georgia to Ottawa, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, Mr. Duffee searched for the Raphael. At the end of twenty-six years he was undiscouraged and then by accident found "the lost Madonna."

Patrick Duffee was a man of wealth three years ago. A certain member of an old Boston family went to him one day and wanted to borrow money.

"Take a mortgage on my house," he urged.

"Well, I'll go out and see it."

AT LAST THE GOAL.

The house was in Boston. As Mr. Duffee entered, he noticed on the wall, a painting by Van Dyke.

"See that picture," he said to the owner. "If you give me that as security, I'll lend you the money."

The owner agreed.

"Well, where there's one good thing, there's often another," Mr. Duffee figured, and he enquired further.

An old lady, mistress of the house thought a bit. "Why, yes," she said finally, "There's a picture of some kind in the attic but nobody has been in that attic for eighty-one years."

Propped against the wall was a painting. The dust of nearly a century concealed all but the mouth and nose of "Mary." The dust was scraped from the precious oil.

"That is the picture I've hunted for!" Mr. Duffee was certain.

An old family Bible lying on a table in the attic of buried treasure gave more information. Written in a clear hand on a page yellowed by time was the memorandum, "To Joseph Bonaparte, the loan of $90,000 on 'Mary and the Infant Christ.'"

"Let me take this to Europe to prove its authenticity," Mr. Duffee begged. "I'll let you have the money without interest for a year."

CRITICS AGREE.

The picture was taken to Europe. Critics gathered from everywhere. They argued, talked, questioned and finally conceded that this treasure dug up from under eighty-one years of dust in an old American attic was the "Madonna Gonzaga"—Raphael's "Lost Madonna."

Patrick Duffee collected every cent he could lay his hands on, took every penny he could borrow, gave notes to acquire the fortune that was the purchase price of the picture.

Three years ago, he paid off the last dollar due. Every cent he had ever owned, everything he had ever earned is gone.

At the top of one of Boston's old buildings, in his small studio, Patrick Duffee, once a rich man, lives, penniless, with his priceless treasure.

HERRICK ESCAPES FRENCH TRAIN CRASH

Paris, April 15 (I.N.S.).—One person was killed and many hurt when the Paris-Biarritz Express De Luxe collided with a freight train near St. Savio today.

Myron T. Herrick, the American Ambassador, had booked passage on the train, but cancelled it at the last minute owing to an attack of grippe.

PRICELESS PAINTING FOUND IN BOSTON

"MADONNA GONZAGA," BY RAPHAEL

Patrick E. Duffee of Boston gazed upon a copy of the beautiful treasure in Paris 30 years ago, vowed he'd own the original and after more than a quarter of a century discovered it in a Boston mansion. He spent a fortune in his long quest and in purchasing the painting which, formerly owned by Napoleon Bonaparte was brought to this country by the latter's brother Joseph, who, the records discovered by Mr. Duffee show, disposed of it for a loan of $90,000 that apparently was never repaid. The painting was found beneath the dust in an attic that had been closed to the world for 81 years.

FLIES BALKED BY 'DOORLESS DOOR'

The 2,000 house flies shipped to Boston from Dallas, Tex., are living the life of Monsieur Riley in private quarters at the Cummings Machine Works, No. 255 Atlantic avenue.

They have drawn apart from their kind to dedicate their short lives to Science.

Superintendent Henry A. Chase is trying out a "doorless door" on them, an invention for the relief of groceries' markets, bakeries and food shops generally upon which the Cummings company already has expended $40,000.

The doorless door is intended to replace the screen door which, as everybody knows, has proved no barrier at all to the fly with even a fourth grade education. Every time a screen door is opened a fly or two crashes the gate.

The doorless door keeps the flies out by counter-currents of cold air.

From the top of the door-casing, at about the center, one blast of air moves at a rate of about 1,500 feet per second. A similar blast is directed, at an angle, from the bottom.

The flies simply cannot stand up against the cold air. In one seven hour experiment only one of the visitors from Dallas was able to cross the threshold. This one, Mr. Chase believes, made the goal before the cold air was turned on.

RENEW AGREEMENT IN RUHR TO JUNE 15

Paris, April 15.—Unofficial announcements of a renewal of the working agreement between the allied authorities of occupation and the Ruhr industrialists regarding deliveries in kind on reparation account were confirmed at the French cabinet meeting today. During this meeting Premier Poincare announced that the agreement with the industrialists, which expired today, had been renewed until June 15.

RE-PURIFICATION OF HELIUM SUCCESS

Washington, April 15.—Gratification over the success of tests at the recently completed helium re-purification plant at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station, was expressed today by Navy Department officials, who said that, as one result of the experiments the lifting capacity of the dirigible Shenandoah probably would be increased by more than two tons. When the gas was removed from the Shenandoah last January and February its purity had fallen as low as 90 per cent.

GUNMAN HIT BY SALMON CAN SMILES

A stranger entered the grocery store of Daniel H. Clark, No. 26 Jacques street, Somerville, and ordered a package of cigarettes.

"Dan" Clark, Jr., twenty years old, son of the proprietor, the only other person in the store, turned to get the cigarettes.

When he swung about he found himself looking into the barrel of a revolver, held in the hand of the stranger.

"Open that cash register and be quick about it," came the command.

OBEYED ORDERS.

Dan did as he was told. The stranger helped himself to $15 in bills and $20 in change.

As he turned to go he put the revolver in his pocket, remarking: "Now stand where you are until I get outside."

The stranger's hand was on the doorknob when Dan reached to a shelf holding ham and took up a can of salmon.

Dan was a baseball pitcher in his school days and the can of salmon caught the retreating robber squarely in the back.

HURLED CAN BACK.

The robber must have had a sense of humor, for instead of whipping out his revolver, he only smiled. Then he picked up the can of salmon and hurled it back at Dan. It missed its mark. Before Dan could repeat the performance, the robber had fled.

Dan gave the police this description of the holdup man:

Twenty-three years old, five feet ten inches in height, light complexion, wore a light cap, and brown overcoat.

DEATH OF CHILD REOPENS FIRE DRIVER ROW

McHarg, Driver of Truck That Killed Girl, Was Suspended Once Before as Reckless

The accident in Everett which caused the death of six-year-old Inez White under the wheels of a fire truck driven by Harvey McHarg has reopened the controversy between Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin and the fire chiefs.

Inez White

McHarg is the man over which the row between Goodwin and the fire chiefs started last December. At that time Goodwin suspended McHarg "in the sense that the fireman was driving his apparatus beyond reasonable speed and was endangering lives."

A group of fire chiefs visited Goodwin and urged him to keep his hands off the fire departments. They assumed responsibility for their own drivers. Now Goodwin has ordered his inspectors to make a thorough investigation of yesterday's accident.

McHarg was answering an alarm for a dump fire. The truck was racing along Chelsea street, Everett, when McHarg, according to witnesses, turned onto the sidewalk to avoid striking a coal truck and a group of children. Before McHarg could stop the fire truck it struck the little White girl.

The ladder truck continued on across a lot and came to rest against a building foundation in a lot adjoining a school playground.

"Fire trucks can be driven safely and yet with all necessary speed," says Registrar Goodwin. "The fact a man is at the wheel of a fire truck gives him no license to jeopardize the lives of others."

McHarg's license has again been temporarily suspended, and Goodwin has promised to take drastic action if investigation warrants it.

MacDONALD PRAISED FOR STAND ON RUSSIA

London, April 15 (I.N.S.).—Influential newspapers today praised Premier MacDonald's speech at the opening of the Anglo-Russian treaty conference for its frankness and sincerity, warning that there must be plain dealing during the negotiations. At the same time, wide prominence was given to the Tiffis speech of Leon Trotsky, Soviet Commissar for War, in which he accused the British Laborite Cabinet of lacking principle.

Five Laborite leaders issued a manifesto accusing British bankers of "trying to bring about economic intervention to dictate the future form of Russian government."

STORE ROBBED IN SPITE OF BURGLAR ALARM

Officers of the Back Bay station were sent to the establishment of the Sokay-Hindu Company at 165 Boylston street when a burglar alarm was received at the offices of the A. D. T. Company from the place.

A window leading from a fire escape was found open and there were indications that some property had been stolen. The police were unable to make an estimate of the loss. The thieves had escaped when the police arrived. The Sokay-Hindu Company business is that of woman's outfitters.

BELIEVE BLAIR SLAIN ON EDGE OF DEEP PIT

Jealousy Theory Enters Into Murder of Employer by Mrs. Johanna Tell

Middletown, Ct., April 15.—One of the officers who is acting the part of investigator in the murder of Mrs. Johanna Tell, widow of Clarence Blair, of Killingworth, is quoted as saying the fertilizer pit, in which he was later found.

Details of the autopsy performed at Clinton by Medical Examiner David A. Fox, assisted by Dr. Jean W. Fisher, of Middletown, serve as the basis for reconstructing the actual killing.

It is admitted it might have been committed in the pit. Mrs. Tell says she killed Blair in the house while she accepted a hunk of blood stained. The autopsy doctors agree that Blair must have died some minutes from both bullet and axe wounds, one of which would have caused death by hemorrhage.

Signs continue to multiply that minister of agony.

English Refuse to Change Policy in India

Mrs. Tell was member of Hare Krishnamurti of the pantheistic Order. New York and was said now she might be fond of him as an object. Additional suspicion was directed toward the former when the bottle of Prussian Blue, today, was identified after from Blair's laboratory and Morris H. examination of the apparently harmless contents. Mrs. Tell, Mrs. The latter admitted that both had consulted with Dr. Kronhardt, from New York.

Another witness was found today who said he had seen Johanna Tell with Blair and Mrs. Tell were seen on McGraw avenue in New York. She was accompanied by a young man who was carrying a bag. It had not been proved, however, that the bag contained anything suspicious.

Blair, following an old custom, left Middletown on the 4:30 train.

THIEVES SCARED OFF BY POLICE ARRIVAL

$3,000 Saved to Proprietors of West End Tailor Shop by Quick Action

The appearance of Patrolmen Russell and Henry Donovan of the police station saved something like $3,000 for the proprietors of the Ba[illegible] Brothers' tailor shop at Cham[illegible] and Cambridge streets, West End, today.

Although the thieves seem to within a stone's throw of the police station, they cut a hole in the back wall of the building and crawled through. They had piled fur coats and cloth in heaps preparatory to their departure when they apparently heard the footsteps of the approaching policemen.

The two Donovans saw some cloth lying in the back alley. Then they found the hole. With drawn guns they advanced, but when they looked the shop the burglars had fled through the front door.

WIDOW TELLS HOW SHE MET BRADSTREET

Mrs. Wallace Admits Being Married Twice; Millionaire Left Many Debts

[illegible] from the day she met him and [illegible] to step told of the work he had done, how he had done it, where they went and every little detail. Her testimony [illegible] into another day at least.

Mrs. Wallace even brought in the name of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the President of the United States, when she told of attending a luncheon at the Boston Professional Women's Club, as guest of Mrs. Bradstreet, at which Mrs. Coolidge was the guest of honor.

Mrs. Wallace said that she had been married once before she married the Rochester, N. H., millionaire, and had one daughter by the first marriage. She said that the last five years of her life with Wallace were devoted to caring for him, because he was ill.

Asked to tell of some of the difficulties Mrs. Wallace told of one instance where she was shocked by the realization that some of the securities she had thought gilt edged were worthless. She declared that one investment which represented $150,000 really turned out to be worth nothing.

"I was frightened at the debts. I didn't know what stocks were good, and the debts totalled more than a half million dollars. I did not know what to do. I felt the need of a financial advisor. Then a man named Watson came to me trying to sell me $18,000 worth of Hollister White stock. I was at first going to buy, then changed my mind when he wanted so much money right away.

"He advised me to come to Boston and see Mr. Bradstreet who, he said, worked for Hollister White for the purpose of advising people what stocks to dispose of and what to trade in where they wanted to invest in something else. He said Mr. Bradstreet was getting $25,000 a year for doing just that. So I came, and that was the first I met Mr. Bradstreet," Watson said Mr. Bradstreet was so honest he lost backwards."

It was then Mrs. Wallace said that she wrote him a letter asking him why he did not take her on as his first client in the business of a financial doctor.

Later Bradstreet went to York Beach to talk with Mrs. Wallace, she said, and it was then she made him a definite offer of $5,000 a year to take over her business interests. Mrs. Wallace then told of meeting Mrs. Bradstreet. She said it was at the Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, N. H.

Miss Cornelia Fiske to Become Bride on April 30, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

ON the last day of April Miss Cornelia Fiske will walk up the aisle of Christ Church in Cambridge, to become the bride of Thomas W. Storrow. She will be the fourth member in her family to leave that historic house of worship as a "Married Maiden," as the Social Register terms them.

Coming over from Gotham to be her sister's honor attendant is dainty Mrs. Lloyd B. Sanderson, Jr. (Rosanna Fiske). Just one day less than two years ago from the 20th Christ Church was the scene of Rosanna Fiske's wedding to Mr. Sanderson, when Miss Cornelia Fiske was the maid of honor.

It was in Christ Church that their mother, the late Mrs. Charles H. Fiske, took her marriage vows, as Miss Mary Thorndike, and a generation before that Mrs. Fiske's mother, the late Mrs. Samuel L. Thorndike (Anna L. Wells) became a bride there.

Among the bridesmaids at the Sanderson-Fiske wedding two Springs ago was handsome Miss Elinor de W. Jackson, who, by the way, will be of the attending group at the marriage of Miss Rosamond Johnson and Howland Seabury on May 1.

Apropos of the former Rosanna Fiske it was about a year ago that a tiny feminine newcomer arrived at the Sanderson household. At nearly the same time occurred the sudden death of young Mrs. Sanderson's mother, Mrs. Fiske.

MISS MARY H. BURR of Chestnut street will also be of the attending group at the wedding of Miss Fiske and Mr. Storrow, which will be solemnized at high noon.

The prospective bridegroom, a Harvard man of the '15 class, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cabot Storrow of Marlboro street. His brother, Edward C. Storrow, Jr., will be best man.

MEMBERS of the North Shore colony will be interested to learn that Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Nichols (Helen Hart) have purchased the Arthur Little place on Hale street, Beverly Farms, which they have been occupying for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols are among the jolliest members of the year-round on the Shore. Mrs. Nichols, who has light hair and pretty blue eyes, has quite a penchant for wearing blue.

EVERETT SAVED BY QUICK ACT OF FIRE CHIEF

Calls Aid From Five Cities When $75,000 Blaze Sweeps Tileston Street Section

The prompt action of Chief Philip Ham of the Everett Fire Department in calling outside aid to fight the $75,000 fire which swept the Tileston street section of West Everett is believed to have averted a duplication of the big fire which destroyed Chelsea years ago.

Chief Ham, upon arriving on the scene of the conflagration, sensed that because of the high wind the blaze would soon spread, and summoned aid from Melrose, Malden, Medford, Somerville and Revere.

The Boston firemen, immediately upon arrival, threw up a water curtain by playing six lines of hose straight into the air in the section where sparks from the fire menaced dwellings, in this way halting the flying embers.

When the excitement had subsided and an account of the number of houses swept by the flames could be taken it was learned that the roofs and upper floors of ten houses had been burned, that one structure—the Conrad Broom Factory—had been destroyed, and that twenty other dwellings were ignited by sparks.

Between 100 and 150 families are reported to have fled from their homes during the blaze, some of them moving household belongings.

The heroes of the fire were Louis Baggie of No. 47 May street and Robert Woodward, employe of the Knowlton Iron Works of Tileston street.

Woodward left the plant when the blaze was discovered and proceeded to the roof of the home of Mrs. Mary Park on May street and with a garden hose showered the roof of the house, extinguishing all sparks that flew in that direction. Mrs. Park is a widow with several children.

Baggie went to the roof of his own house with a garden hose and sprayed it, remaining there despite the command of firemen to come down.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Read How Mrs. Walsh Was Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mannington, W. Virginia.—"I took the Vegetable Compound when having the turn of life. I had been sick for seven years. I would get a little better, then I broke down again. It would be hard for me to describe how I was for I was a perfect wreck. I suffered with a pain in my left side, then I would have numb spells, and I would think I couldn't live. I would have hot flashes, then would come weak spells. I was so weak I would think I couldn't ever get a meal ready. My mother was a burden to me. I was not able to do my housework half of the time. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has given me strength and health. The hot flashes left me and I got better of the numb spells. That summer I could do my housework and worked in the garden a good deal. I tell all sick women what your wonderful medicine did for me, and will always recommend it. I am known to all my neighbors, and you can publish this statement because it is true."—Mrs. JOHN W. WALSH, R. No. 1, Box 25, Mannington, West Virginia.

BROOKFIELD VET ENDS LIFE IN CENTRAL PARK

Children Look on as Charles H. Moulton Shoots Himself Dead

BROOKFIELD, April 15.—Charles H. Moulton, YD veteran, formerly of Brookfield, shot and killed himself in Central Park, New York, according to word received here today.

Moulton, who was gassed and shell-shocked overseas, was connected with the Class Journal Company's automotive publications and was assistant editor of El Automovil American, a Latin-American edition of one of his concern's trade journals.

The editor took his life in the presence of children playing in the park. Realizing his act, they shouted at him, but failed to deter the fatal shot.

Moulton was graduated from Brookfield High School in 1910 and attended Amherst College, being graduated in 1914. When the war broke out he enlisted with B Battery, 103d Regiment, 26th Division. He served nineteen months overseas and was cited for bravery.

The body will be brought back to Brookfield by Guy E. Moulton, a brother, instructor at the Choate School at Wallingford, Ct.

Secretary of the Treasury a man as able as Mr. Mellon.

It would be a bad thing for this country, for those that HAVE money, and for the workers that are trying to GET it, if Mr. Mellon should be driven out by unjust criticism.

Fortunately, he is an individual not inclined to quit.

DELEGATIONS of workmen from the Standard Oil plant in New Jersey calling on John D. Rockefeller, Jr., inviting him to dine, find him laid up with a cold.

Many great doctors in Europe would say to Mr. Rockefeller under such conditions, "Take good red wine with your meals every day. Drink it very much diluted with water during the meal, then take one glass of good Bordeaux or Burgundy afterwards. Thus you will build up new red blood, supply your system with iron and tannin and gain strength rapidly."

However, over here, we know that that is heresy and that you should look for iron, tannin and good red blood in the ice-water pitcher.

HERE'S a small piece of news, rather cheerful amid the gloom. It is one of the little chapters in man's fight against the fifth enemy that he really has—Nature.

Out in the ocean, off Cape Race, is a gigantic iceberg, more than a mile long, towering a hundred feet in the air. To bump into it would mean destruction to any ship.

In old days men would have said, "Let us pray that no unfortunate ship will strike that fearful iceberg."

PRAYING is good, especially when accompanied by deeds. Now this government sends the revenue cutter Algonquin to trail along beside that iceberg—it moves slowly and majestically to its melting place near the equator. And as the big iceberg dissolves, the little cutter broadcasts warnings, telling ships to keep away. That's a sign of civilization.

THE GIVING up of control by Egypt, the home rule agitation in India and the strong pacifist nature of the Labor government are worrying Englishmen. And some of them are beginning to talk about "the breaking up of the British Empire."

It may break up soon, it must break up some time, of course. The Labor party, led by a really intelligent man, ought not to be responsible for the smashing.

Ramsay MacDonald knows that if England is a place in which intelligent men can live comfortably, it is because Englishmen, through the ages, have been ready and able to fight. The fighting days are not gone by.

Flapper Is Hope of U. S., Mrs. Cook Tells D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, in a spirited defense of the flapper and the youth of the present, won applause from 2,000 delegates at the D. A. R. convention. She said:

"The hope of America's tomorrow is in the boys and girls of today.

"Where is the man or woman who has not yielded to frivolous impulse in youth? Who of us in the fullness of years and good deeds would willingly be judged wholly by one act of our early exuberance? Who dares to mistrust youth?"

WOMEN URGED TO VOTE BY COOLIDGE

President Tells D. A. R. Congress That They Have Had Long Notice of Election

Washington, April 15.—Some action designed to encourage participation by women in the coming election was promised today by leaders attending the thirty-third annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

President Coolidge, addressing the convention, pointed out that for the first time in a national election the women of the United States have known far in advance that they would have a voice in the decision, and urged them to exercise their right of suffrage to the fullest extent.

The value of womanhood was emphasized by General Pershing, who, with Mrs. Pershing, Jusserand of France and Viscount of Great Britain, also addressed the congress.

TENDLER AND FRIEDMAN IN PUNCHING BATTLE TONIGHT

RIVALS ARE READY FOR THE BELL

By JACK CONWAY.

Lew Tendler, who hits 'em as hard in the ring as Babe Ruth whales the old apple at the baseball orchard, will be pitted against another puncher when he collides with Sailor Friedman of Chicago in the feature ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

Tendler, for years the one serious obstacle in the path of Benny Leonard, has decided to do his battling in the welterweight division from now on. He found difficulty in reducing to the lightweight notch and decided he would have more success if he clashed with men of his own weight.

Tendler has picked one of the world's toughest welterweights for his test tonight. Friedman has knocked out Eddie Fitzsimmons, Frankie Callahan, K. O. Loughran and a flock of other stars, while he has punched around Benny Leonard, Johnny Dundee and Charley White.

Since Friedman knocked Fitzsimmons out of the picture he has had his trouble in getting matches. Most of the headliners do not care to get in the way of Friedman's big sock.

When Tendler announced he had decided to quit the lightweight division and give his attention to the welterweights, he agreed to tackle Friedman.

"I know that the former sailor is one of the hardest hitting welterweights in the world," said Harry Lew. "I figure, though, that if I can defeat him that I won't have any trouble forcing Mickey Walker to give me a bout for the title.

"I shall force the issue from the bell. I shall swap punches with Friedman if he cares to do likewise. We shall then see which of us can hit the hardest."

Tendler was accompanied to Boston by Phil Glassman, his manager.

Friedman has been here for several days and has made a big hit with those who have seen him work out at Billy Rolfe's Gym in the South End.

It is one of the best ring attractions of the season and is sure to attract a capacity crowd.

Tendler and Friedman will be supported by a strong card. Benny Bass of Philadelphia, another Glassman boxer, will oppose Jenny Linn of New York in the semi-final of five rounds. Spike Hennessey of Waltham and the colorful Jackie Williams of Chicago will battle eight sessions as will Harry Bergeron of New Bedford and Charley Donovan of Dorchester.

Pal Reed, accompanied by South Boston Johnny Downes, his new manager, was a caller.

"I am feeling better than at any time since I started boxing," said Reed. "I would like to get into the ring with Jack Delaney. I saw Delaney battle George Robinson and my only regret was that I wasn't in the Cambridge man's place.

"Delaney is one of the few boxers who will stand up and swap blows with an opponent. He doesn't resort to a great deal of clever boxing. He is the old type of wide open puncher.

"It has always been my ambition to get into a ring with this type of fighter. I have always felt I could defeat any man who would stand up and punch with me."

Jim MacDonald, manager of Pal McCarthy, announces that the Roxbury light-heavyweight is confident he can knock out Hambone Kelly inside of five rounds. McCarthy recently resumed boxing after a long layoff due to a broken hand.

When McCarthy and Hambone last met, Pat won a decision. In the sixth round he had Hambone groggy. MacDonald says that a broken hand was the only thing that prevented Pat from battering the big punch. Kelly will resume training tomorrow. His left hand is O. K. once more, according to Manager Johnny McGrath.

Tommy Nee, clever South Boston bantamweight, has returned from Montreal where he engaged in a furious bout with Kid LeRoy. Fred Wiederhold, Nee's manager, tossed a towel into the ring in the sixth round when Tommy's left ear was badly injured from a blood clot. I think it would be good policy to permit the bout to go on under such conditions.

Montreal promoters wished to match the boys back over again. Wiederhold passed up their offers on account of the fact LeRoy is eight pounds heavier than Nee.

While in Montreal, Wiederhold tilled with Jack Johnson. Fred says the former champion appears in fine physical condition and is getting a few thrills out of life dashing around in a $15,000 auto of foreign make.

Jackie Williams writes:

"Tansey Norton has satisfied himself that Eddie Sherlin is a rather ungrateful fellow as he has been promising Tansey a chance for the past six months, to win the welterweight championship of New England. After offering an unreasonable alibi every time his manager approached regarding the match contest, he now openly admits he will not defend his welterweight championship in Massachusetts against Tansey.

Jack Conway Picks Tendler to Win Over Friedman

Jack Conway, holder of the world's record for picking winners, hands out the following dope on tonight's Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building.

"I am picking Lew Tendler to win over Sailor Friedman," says Jack. "This is one of the best welterweight bookings made by a Boston club in a long time. It brings together two sweet sockers. Tendler for years was the terror of the lightweight division on account of his terrific walloping power. As a welterweight he should be able to hit even harder, as he won't have to weaken himself making weight.

"Friedman's knockouts of Eddie Fitzsimmons, Frankie Callahan and K. O. Loughlin prove he can hit as hard as Tendler. It will be SOME battle."

Jack has picked 51 winners out of a possible 56 this year.

KID NORFOLK OUT TO HAND GREB DEFEAT

Kid Norfolk, famous colored light-heavyweight, will be in our midst on Saturday night with Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, as an opponent in a ten-round bout at the Faneuil Club's show at Mechanics Building.

Kid Norfolk

Norfolk has engaged in some of his best battles in this city. Naturally the fans are interested to see him in action against Greb.

When these men battled at Pittsburyh a couple of years ago, Norfolk dropped Greb to the canvas twice in the opening round. Greb came back and piled up a flock of points in the remaining rounds.

There was a clondinch at the end of the first session. The rivals battled on despite the downpour. The boxing gloves were heavy as a result of the rain. This enabled Greb to do heavy execution with his jabs and hooks. Harry was obliged to step lively all the time to keep out of the way of Norfolk's akvo.

There was no decision in the Pittsburgh bout, and so each boxer will battle hard to earn the award on Saturday night.

RUSSIAN COUNT TO TACKLE LONDOS

The Grand Opera House will be packed to the doors on Thursday night mainly by Greeks to see their idol Jimmy Londos whom they haven't seen over two years. Tickets are going in blocks of ten and twenties. Lawrence, Lowell and surrounding towns are buying their tickets in advance.

Stasiak

Londos is booked to meet Count Nicholas Zarrynoff, the Russian nobleman, in a one fall contest with no time limit.

Fans who have seen the Russian in action are of the opinion that the Greek Idol will have his hands full as the Count is one classy performer and don't do any stalling.

Another star bout on the card will be between Stanley Stasiak, the great Polish wrestler, and Joseph Bagazzi. Bagazzi is a German, and considered a rough wrestler. He has even gone so far as to say he is a Lion Tamer and is of the opinion that he can tame Polish Lions especially.

However, he will find Stasiak in the greatest shape of his career, and now that he is matched to meet Lewis for the Title, will step out on high to prove to the public that he is deserving of the chance that has been offered to him.

George Kotsonaros, Greek wrestler of wonderful ability, will appear on the card, meeting Andreas Costanes, the Spanish Bull Fighter.

Costanes is a classy wrestler and has been a sensational matches on the Pacific Coast. Kotsy needs no introduction to Boston mat fans, as he has the goods and always gives them a run for their money.

Athletes who have excelled in volley ball, boxing, gymnastics, wrestling, exhibition work, in basketball work, and in points made in outside competition will be given suitable medals. A feature of the evening will be the 220-yard national championship swimming race in the pool.

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR RING SPORTS

With three big amateur boxing tournaments on the card for the rest of the season, fans who are procuring early reservations for the tri-city tournament between Boston, New York and Montreal at the Boston Arena, Tuesday evening, April 22, and are also making reservations for the N. E. championships as well as the national championships, which will wind up the indoor amateur boxing season.

Four classes will be held at the intercity show, including 115, 126, 135 and 147 pounds, and it is expected that the same undefeated Boston team, which recently turned back Toronto and Buffalo, again will be selected to represent the Hub.

EAGLE SCREAMS AT HEIGHTS TOMMORROW

The big guns of the Boston College baseball squad will open fire tomorrow afternoon against Northeastern. The appearance of the in-town team against Tufts Saturday was impressive, and Northeastern hopes to repeat against the Eagle.

Steve Patten

There is little danger, however, that the engineers will cause B. C. much trouble, as last year they succumbed by quite a substantial score. It will be interesting to see B. C. in action for the first time, especially since the condition of the field and of the weather has been such to keep the team indoors.

Coach Bond of the Back Bay institution has six veterans about whom he has built a nine, chief among whom is Captain Bernie Ayers, who starred last year at second.

The pitching department is the weak spot in the Northeastern lineup. Richards is the only veteran who remains to start in the box. Schuman, the star hurler of last year's team, has transferred to Tufts. Thorston and two outfield berths will be filled by new men.

It is expected that either Steve Patten or Eddi Mulowney will start on the rubber for the Eagle, while Brosnan the choice at second.

LAUZON OF LYNN DEFEATS GATCOMB

"Del" Lauzon of Lynn was last evening's winner in the New England pocket billiard championship at the State Theatre Club. He defeated Fred Gatcomb of Malden by the score of 125 to 69. The winner's high run was 22, Gatcomb's 15. This evening "Ted" Edwards of Pawtucket will oppose Fred Jordan of Boston.

GOLF ON THE BATTLEFIELDS

Ancient Game Undergoes a Still More Ancient Change.

Dr[illegible] Ancient game and the [illegible] over the historic fields of Yorktown, Virginia:

A three million dollar resort hotel is in course of construction in the vicinity. As an adjunct to the hotel there will be two eighteen hole standard golf courses and a five hole practice course for the neophyte to try out his prowess on.

One of the courses will extend directly across the battlefield. The third tee will be almost on the exact spot where Cornwallis surrendered his sword to Washington.

In the near distance as the player passes on in his round he will be able to see the old houses where the American and the British commanders had their headquarters during the siege. Moore House where the terms of the surrender were made, is still standing and will be right on the border of the course.

The ancient redoubts, gun pits and trenches are scattered over the territory and will be traversed by the new fairways, although it has been definitely stated that none of these historic excavations will be disturbed. Suitable tablets will be put up to identify these spots.

Imagine the plight of the dub, accustomed to plow up greens and fairways with his mashie!

Up comes a sudden chunk of sod and there in the hole a rusty old bayonet or perhaps, who knows, the gaping skull of some warrior of a bygone day!

In a year, the greens committee ought to have quite a valuable collection of relics

BEER TRAINING FOR ENGLISH HORSE

Something Out of the Ordinary Brings 65 to 1 Shot in a Winner.

Beer—not near—was responsible for the remarkable victory of Brute Bud, a 65 to 1 shot, last week in the Lincoln Handicap in England, according to the mare's trainer.

Several weeks before the race, the mare, during a trial run, became excited. She clinched the bit and ran away. As a result she became so nervous that she refused to eat. After trying numerous foods on her, the trainer resorted to beer.

White Bud changed her mind about the hunger strike immediately and stuck to her new diet, taking two pints day elixir every day for a period of three weeks before the race.

Then she ran, proving that there was considerable life in the old girl yet.

18.2 BALKLINE GOLF

Cue Ball in the 18th "Pocket."

An interesting golf problem occurred at Pinchurst last year when two opponents in a four ball match played their putts at the same time. The balls collided and one caromed into the hole.

The incident occurred on the home green with the opposing sides all even. Earnest efforts to determine the winners of the match in a manner satisfactory to all concerned, proved unavailing.

What would you do under the circumstances?

That's just what they did, do!

AERIAL GOLF

Bomb Sights Replace the "Driving Eye."

A novel aeroplane golf match was staged at the Olympia Country Club near Chicago as part of the celebration of the opening of the Club's fourth eighteen hole course which made the Olympia the largest golf club in the world.

The contest was staged between nine pros and nine amateurs, who played on the ground.

The pilots of the aeroplanes flew over the course and dropped balls as near the putting greens as possible. The opposing players then holed out from where the balls fell.

TWO NEW RECORDS IN ARENA BOWLING

Two records were broken last night while another was equaled during the afternoon session of the bowling tournament at the Arena.

George Kane of Fitchburg, rolling during the early afternoon, smashed the single three string record by toppling the uprights for 342.

The fans were anxious to see baseball anyway, and more than anxious to get a peek at the new team that Bob Quinn has collected and Lee Fohl moulded into a very dangerous ball club.

UPROAR AND HILARITY.

There was all the uproar and hilarity that are invariably present at these festive occasions. The players were all drilled to march to the flagpole. The Mayor had his arm in great shape to chuck out the first apple. The prominent citizens have been puffing out their chests for a week back, which isn't a wise crack, preparatory to sunning themselves in the boxes.

Grandmothers started dying in the business section as they haven't nerved for years. The Spring ailment was an epidemic in the business offices, where the future moulders of destiny were afflicted with that terrible combination, the "oh well" feeling that goes with mid-April and baseball fever.

It all loomed up like one of the largest outdoor April days that have came to this corner of the universe in a long, long time.

There were a million and one things about the Red Sox to stand up the popular interest. The club has five or six new regulars that must come under the microscope eye of the fanish before any judgment is passed. The Red Sox are not fatuously going to wind up far above the cellar. The team is trying to get somewhere, and Boston needs that sort of thing.

EX-BOSTON SHORTSTOP.

Everett Scott will be playing his one thousandth and some odd hundredth consecutive large league ball game. The mob will be able to get some sort of an idea as to whether the champions are all set to make another runaway race of it.

And sat's nich will have its chance to luxuriate in the great outdoors yes read about—after the subway jam is over. Leomuns as we remarked like a very large day.

Our Red Sox trickled in rom the West yesterday in nickity fine shape to properly receive their welcome. They have had very good luck on the trails, and ready for real competition. Lee Fohl admits that he's a little better than satisfied with condition, and that's quite an admission from that silent bird.

"I think I have a mighty good ball club," explains Lee, "and I know we'll give anybody a tough battle. I have a hitting club and a lot of pitching that will surprise the boys, and the club looks good in the field."

HE SAID MOUTHFULS.

That's several mouthfuls from Lee, who believes in accomplishment rather than conversation. He has quite a reputation as a rejuvenator in baseball. He took the Cleveland club, and made it a championship contender. Then he pushed the St. Louis Browns up to within one game of a pennant. Now he's beginning to put Boston back on the baseball map.

Principal interest in the club will center on Dudley Lee, the Tulsa shortstop, whose praises have been chanted far and wide. Dudley lived up to all the advance notices in the South, and boys who know declare that he will be one of the year's sensations. He's one of the flashy grounder grabbers that baseball crowds idolize, and he hits the onion somewhat close to the nose.

But Dud will not have all the call-outs, not by a million miles. The throng wants a look at Sevo O'Neill, one of the greatest of catchers who still has a lot of baseball left. With Cleveland, Sevo was a super backstop for several seasons, and he has threatened to return to that sort of thing with the Sox.

WAMBSGANSS, TOO.

Bill Wambsganss, Indian second baseman and a great one, whose full name will probably not be used hereabouts again until the Sox win a pennant, will land in Bean a lot of friends here, and he'll make a lot more. Teamed up with young Master Lee, Bill will provide quite a combination around the middle station. And that's where a team must be good to arrive anywhere.

Ike Boone, Bob Veach and Young Williams in the outfield were all strangers as native Bostonians, and naturally will find themselves somewhat embarrassed at the attention they're going to get.

The entire team, in fact, will find a new baseball spirit in Boston, and what's perhaps more to the point, Boston will find a new spirit in the team.

The Yankees, who shouldn't be neglected as long as this is any story, are all ready to time their fourth into the scramble. The team looks just as pretentious as it did a year ago this Spring, and besides has the prestige that a full decision over the Giants manufactured.

Miller Huggins wouldn't be hasten or chased very hard this season, on the dope, but Miller has a lot of veteran pitchers—Jones, Bush, Shawkey and Pennock have been going to the races for a long time—and the boys have to slip some time. If one or two of the expensive Yank sharpshooters hit the skids at the same time, there will be smashing of teeth and things in New York.

That rests with the future, however. Just now Miller's valuable athletes are in good trim, and the wee manager will have them pursuing the daily pastime with great zest, sure of pounding against the day when the chutes appear.

BRAVES FAVORED TO WIN OPENER FROM PHILLY

Philadelphia, Pa., April 15.—In Boston's entry into the National League campaign the Braves found themselves three to one favorites over the Phillies today as both clubs prepared to officially open the 1924 season with all the historic sideshow attractions which annually mark the inauguration of baseball. The odds were quoted in view of the preseason work of each team and were for today's game only, when Philadelphia will have its first glimpse of the formidable Braves under the management of Dave Bancroft, the former idol of local fandom.

Hundreds of followers of Dave were on hand to greet the former Phillie star when he appeared on a big league manager. Bancroft said himself and every member of his team was confident not only of whipping the fid-opener, but the putting up a stiff race throughout the entire season.

The keen rivalry between the Braves and Phils last season added interest to the opener which was marked by much fame and blaze. Mayor Freeland Kendrick, an ardent fan, director of public safety Moseley D. Baily, for the fighting Marine, and all members of the mayor's official family were in boxes. The mayor was selected to hurl the first ball.

Dave Bancroft

Joe Genewich

In their practice the Braves looked far better than last year. The infield looked snappy with Bancroft working next to "Cotton" Tierney, who captured the second job for the Phils last season. The outfield also sized up well, with Casey Stengel, hero of the World's Series in right field.

Not to be outdone by looks the Phils showed up to be an impressive aggregation as they got into trim preliminary to the opening festivities. The Panthermen had also won the city championship by defeating the Athletics three games out of five. The lineup:

Giants In for Bitter Fight to Repeat, Says Heydler

By JOHN HEYDLER
President National League

One of the greatest seasons, according to all indications, baseball has known opens today. All the teams in the National League have strengthened, and prospects are very bright for an unusually close race. The Giants have some great new material and will be hard to defeat, but at least a couple of teams will challenge them bitterly and it will take a great fight for them to repeat. The Braves have improved splendidly, and I am sure Manager Barnett will give Boston the best team it has had in several years.

BIG YEAR FOR BOSTON 'Y' WRESTLERS

The Boston Y. M. C. A. wrestling team has had a highly successful season, having been defeated by only one team, that of the Boston Y. M. C. Union. It won from Lynn Y. M. C. A., Cambridge, Y. M. C. A. Northeastern University and Phillips Andover Academy. In the Two-State championship meet, though having only four men entered, the team won second place. In the N. E. A. A. U. Olympic championship only five men from the Boston team were eligible to compete on account of the nationality ruling. Of these five men entered, four placed—one first, one second and two thirds. Captain Jean won the 134-pound New England championship and goes to New York for the Olympic finals.

HOW BRIGHTON MAN REPELLED BANDIT

ANSWERS GUNMAN WITH CHAIR

Walter T. Buttkus, night shipper at Hood depot in Brighton, proved more than match for invader.

SMASHES CHAIR OVER HEAD OF BANDIT

Brighton Shipper Spurns Command of Gunman to "Throw Up His Hands!"

Walter T. Buttkus, 32, night shipper in the Brighton depot of H. P. Hood & Sons at No. 136 Westbourne Terrace, was much in demand today by policemen, detectives, reporters and photographers interested in the story of how he knocked a would-be hold-up man into some hogsheads.

"Hold up your hands!" ordered the bandit, trailing Buttkus through a passageway in the milk depot.

Buttkus turned, saw that the bandit had an 8-inch dirk in his hand, and made a grab for it. He got it, too, but not without a painful gash in his left forefinger.

USED CHAIR AS CLUB.

Then he struck the hold-up man over the head with a chair, felling him.

"There were two of them," Buttkus reported to the police of Station 14.

"They came into the place a minute after the clock struck twelve, asked for a bottle of milk and paid 25 cents.

"They sat down to drink the milk and one of them asked if they couldn't take it into a sort of private room. I couldn't see any reasonable objection, they looked all right, and I was leading the way when I got the command to 'stick 'em up,' and turned and saw the dirk.

ORDER MADE HIM MAD.

"It made me mad, and without stopping to think of the possible danger I just lit into him.

"The minute he hit the floor for the first time the other fellow turned and ran into the street.

"He must have taken a drink out there, or got a shot of cocaine, for he came back again, revolver in hand, when his pal was stretched out for the count.

"Pointing the gun at me, he said: 'Back up, now, if you know what's good for you, and let me take him out.'

"I backed up, not very far, and they got to the street, hopped into a touring car of midnight-blue color, and got away. I could see no number-plates on the car."

FERRIES FREE WHILE TUNNEL IS CLOSED

Foot passengers, residents of East Boston, will be able to ride free of charge on the North and South ferries, from Friday night to Monday morning, during the time that the tunnel is closed. Mayor Curley will sign his order for same passed by the City Council.

The closing of the tunnel will be caused by the shifting of rails by the Elevated at the new Maverick Square station, the holiday and Sunday were picked because of the low ebb in traffic conditions.

NAHANT BOYS SAVED FROM SINKING RAFT

The first adventure at sea of Barney Bender and John Pelase, each fourteen years old, and both of No. 109 Blossom street, Lynn, nearly ended in disaster.

They embarked from Lamper's Wharf, Nahant, on an improvised raft. All went well until they had drifted about two miles from shore.

Part of the raft became submerged and the boys found themselves up to their knees in water.

The boys were taken off the raft by the fishermen, turned over to the police and removed to their homes.

HUGHES SPEAKS FOR COOLIDGE IN N. Y. TONIGHT

Washington, April 15 (I.N.S.S.)—The first authoritative outline of the platform on which Calvin Coolidge expects to go before the country will be given in New York tonight by Charles Evans Hughes.

The secretary of state will be the keynote orator at the Republican State Convention there. He will deliver a prepared address, reviewing the three years of Republican administration and while it is essentially Mr. Hughes' speech it also bears the legend "O. K., C. C." The President and his secretary of state have had several conferences and Mr. Coolidge has given it his approval.

Republican leaders said today there would be no "embarrassments" following the Hughes speech similar to that which followed the keynoting of Senator Pepper, at the Maine convention two weeks ago. Pepper stirred up a hornet's nest in Republican ranks by characterizing the appointment of Harry M. Daugherty as attorney general by the late President Harding as "a grave error in judgment."

Mr. Hughes, it is understood, will content himself with an explanation and commendation of the measures taken by President Coolidge to protect the public interests and insure honesty in government.

President Coolidge himself will do some keynoting next week when he goes to New York for the second speech he has made away from Washington since his inauguration.

WORKS AT NEWS STAND PENDING BALM TRIAL

MRS. CATHERINE LANG

Dudley street mother of three children is working on a newsstand to support them, she says, pending the trial of her $50,000 alienation suit against Mrs. Edna Galbraith, a Dorchester widow. Mrs. Lang has asked that her case be moved up for trial before the Summer vacation of court.

Mrs. Catherine Lang, wife of Gerhardt William Lang, who is suing Mrs. Edna Galbraith, Dorchester widow, $50,000, charging alienation of the affections of her husband, has instructed her counsel to ask Judge O'Connell in the motion session of the Superior Court to advance her case for trial before the Summer vacation.

Mrs. Galbraith in answer to interrogatories recently admitted that she bought a ticket for Lang when he departed for Reno, Nev., that she later sent him sums of money there at his request, and that he had been a lodger in her apartment.

Lang was brought back from Reno some time ago and charged with a statutory offence with Mrs. Galbraith. He pleaded guilty and both were convicted in Roxbury Court. Mrs. Galbraith, however, appealed and was later acquitted in Superior Court.

Mrs. Lang, who lives at No. 719 Dudley street, is working on a news stand to support herself and three children.

Mrs. Galbraith made sweeping denials in answer to interrogations about frequent visits to Lang at his place of employment, automobile rides and trips to Portland and New York.

ELECTION RACE BARES SECRET WEDDING

The marriage of a former Boston College athlete to a woman prominent in Somerville politics, kept secret for a year-and-a-half, was revealed today when E. Agnes Blood of No. 61 Hall avenue, West Somerville, filed presidential primary nomination papers under the name, E. Agnes Blood O'Brien.

"I hoped it would not be noticed," said Mrs. O'Brien who was a delegate to the National Democratic convention in San Francisco in 1920. "It was my intention to announce my marriage after graduating from Law school.

"But now the cat is out of the bag, I may as well gracefully plead guilty to the charge of being a married woman."

Her husband is Edmund O. O'Brien, to the employ of William Welch, prominent financier of New York. O'Brien was graduated from Boston College in 1922 after starring on the hockey team.

The marriage took place in New York on October 31, 1923. The bride and groom had been friends eight years and, although the marriage was known to their parents it was kept secret from friends until public until Mrs. O'Brien filed her nomination papers.

Cardinal O'Connell Issues Appeal for German Tots

New York, April 15.—Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, has made the following appeal in behalf of starving German children in a letter to the American committee which is raising funds for relief work:

"I am glad to have the opportunity of assuring you of my sincere sympathy in the work of the American committee for the relief of German children and of my purpose to cooperate in every way I can with this truly charitable work.

"I hope that our Catholic people will join all others in giving generously to this necessary Christian work."

'UP SHE GOES' PLEASES AT SOMERVILLE

Laughter and applause, plentifully bestowed, testified to the enjoyment of last evening's audience at the Somerville Theatre, where "Up She Goes," a delightful musical comedy, was presented.

"Up She Goes" reveals a pleasing medley of a few seasons past fitted anew to musical comedy purpose, and embellished with tuneful melodies and dainty and dexterous stepping. Snappy dialogue, clever lyrics and winning music gave to the performance both lapsed and charm.

The book is all about the trials and tribulations of a betrothed couple, brought about by the intrigues machinations of relatives. Leila Cosmer as Alice Cash, betrothed to Albert Bennett, played by Bernard Nedell, gave a capable performance.

Mr. Nedell played his part in a natural and convincing manner. Phil Sheffield as Frank Andrews was particularly clever and Darry Welford as Ella Mayer was engaging.

'THE MAN FROM HOME' AT THE ST. JAMES

Before a large audience last evening the Boston Stock Company presented "The Man From Home" by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, a vehicle which served William Hodge for some seasons.

The play was well acted and produced, and proved to have lost none of the entertaining qualities which made it a running success some seasons ago.

Mr. Gilbert acted the hard-headed Hoosier and the balance of the cool-headed point that ranged from Russian dukes to a French adventuress, as wide an assortment of character parts as has been seen on the St. James stage this season.

'MOON FLOWER' IS SHUBERT OFFERING

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

FOR a test of talent there is nothing in the life of an actress like the lure of a tainted role. There is always a warm artistic affection for the little wayward sister of the drama, no matter where she plies her trade.

In the case of Elsie Ferguson's flare into the gay life of a continental courtesan in "The Moon Flower," at the Shubert, last evening, there was little doubt that she made a bad job of it, even though the spirit of the times calls for stern deeds from the best of our player folk.

ACTION LACKING.

For our own part we prefer Miss Ferguson in the fluffier things of the stage. Though that impression might not have driven itself so pointedly into the mind if the lady-author of the play had pursued her characters with more action and less conversation.

Not even highly tinted hair and a flushed cheek robbed you of sweet memories of Miss Ferguson's more agreeable former exploits in the interest of her art. "A Romantic Episode" is the somewhat altering description applied by the program to Zoe Akins' play, made over for provincial tastes from a romantic Hungarian outburst by Lajos Biro.

It might as well have been labelled "A Day Night on the Mediterranean," except that the gaieties were left for the mind to conceive, while the eyes viewed perfunctory characters moving about in smart clothes and the ears listened to the poetic pleading of romantic youth for one wild fling at life.

STAR UNCONVINCING.

Miss Ferguson carried the heavy burden of the performance, upon her own pretty shoulders, but ever her adroitly administered talents did not make Diane appear as naughty as the author must have intended.

The fluttering youngster who assailed the heart of Diane, and who feared neither death nor disaster, nor any of the terrible consequences of a mad rendezvous with the mistress of a murderous duke, yielded yards and yards of pretty speeches to Sidney Blackmer.

If he could have been spared some of his romanticisms he might have made Peter a more heroic figure.

Frederick Worlock bore up wonderfully under a gorgeously custom cut beard and Edwin Nicander contributed the only cheerful moments of the evening as an impecunious baron with a philosophical trend of mind.

"The Moon Flower" imposed no more imposing task upon Miss Ferguson than the wearing of attractive gowns and the sprightly manner of a lady lacking in morals. In one case she was supreme, but in the other she failed to make you believe she was more than half as bad as she was painted.

NEW PROGRAM FOR CHAUVE-SOURIS

Coming to the Shubert Theatre next Monday for three weeks only will be Balieff's Chauve-Souris, with an entirely new program, with the possible exception of "The Gypsy Songs" or "A Night at Yards." A new edition of the famous "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" involves "Katinka's Unexpected Romance."

Instead of the song selections used in the first Chauve-Souris bill, ten more gypsy songs, each entirely new, will be sung by the Chauve-Souris "Gypsies." Other numbers in Balieff's new bill will be "Surgery" and "Marlborough Goes to Wars."

KEENE-HALPIN BENEFIT TONIGHT

The testimonial performance to James H. Keen and Howard Halpin, the box office men at the Selwyn theatre, will take place tonight. The play will be "Dangerous People" in which William Courtenay is the principal player and which is now in its final week at that house.

Mr. Keen and Mr. Halpin have been connected with the Selwyn for many years and each has had an extensive experience with box office work at other playhouses.

FAVERSHAM PRAISES 'RED ROBE'

William Faversham, who created the role of the Gil de Berault, in Charles Frohman's stage production of "Under the Red Robe" some years ago, enthused over the million and a half dollar screen version of this famous story by Stanley Weyman.

In this great masterpiece now on its final week at the Park Theatre, the role of Gil de Berault is interpreted by John Charles Thomas, Robert Mantell plays Cardinal Richelieu and Almá Rubens appears as Irene.

"I have found a great deal about this screen version of 'Under the Red Robe,'" said Mr. Faversham, after seeing the film on Broadway, "and expected much of it. I was totally unprepared, however, for the amazing spectacle I witnessed. It is a great picture, a feast for the eye and acted flawlessly. Never before have I witnessed such gorgeous stage settings.

"I have heard a great deal about this screen version of 'Under the Red Robe,'" said Mr. Faversham, after seeing the film on Broadway, "and expected much of it. I was totally unprepared, however, for the amazing spectacle I witnessed. It is a great picture, a feast for the eye and acted flawlessly. Never before have I witnessed such gorgeous stage settings.

"The original stage production was a big success in its time and ran for more than two years at the Empire Theatre. The masterpieces of Stanley Weyman, however, has much wider scope on the screen.

"The magnificence and the tremendous scene which the story entails can be more fittingly represented in a film than could be possible on the speaking stage. 'Under the Red Robe' on the screen is absolutely correct in every respect as to costuming and scenery. The work of every member of the cast is to be commended."

WHOLESOME FUN ON KEITH'S BILL

Clean, wholesome comedy interspersed with fitting musical numbers and a bit of modern dancing, features an excellent vaudeville bill at Keith's Theatre.

Clark and Mcfallough, late stars of Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue," were the headliners. Assisted by seven artists—all clever performers—the pair put over one of the screamiest acts witnessed in a Boston vaudeville house in many a year.

Howard Russell and Kitty Tobin of Cambridge, exhibition ballroom dancers, made their first Keith appearance, assisting Tom Carey and his orchestra. Miss Tobin was accorded a hearty welcome by Cambridge friends in the audience.

Mere fun was introduced by O'Donnell and Blair. Watts and Hawley in "Laughs Coated with Melody;" Marie Dawson Mecoff, exceptional violinist; Margaret Mc Kee, California songstress; Rock and Record and Gintaro with a novel offering, coincidere the bill.

NEW PORTABLE SET STARTLES LISTENERS

6-Tube Receiver in Week-End Case Heard 1st Time on Common

People on Boston Common gasped when they heard the strains of an orchestra emanating from a week end case carried by John Shepard, 3rd.

Then when a voice announced very distinctly that it was WNAC there was even more gasping.

The case contained the very latest in portable radio sets, and this was the first one of the type to appear in Boston.

The set is a six-tube affair, three stages of straight radio-frequency amplification, detector, and two stages of audio-frequency amplification, with loud speaker.

CASE IS INCONSPICUOUS.

Except for the three controls, which are quite inconspicuous, and the small holes for the horn of the loud speaker, there is nothing about the case to suggest that it contained anything but the usual toothbrush, pajamas and clean shirt for a week end party. The case is 15x8x6 inches, and completely fitted, weighs only twenty pounds.

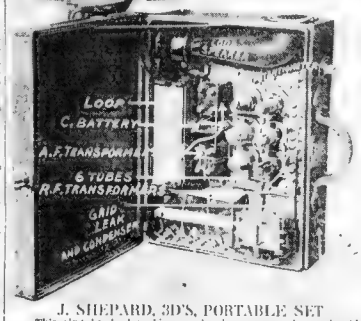
The three control knobs are specially designed and countersunk so as to be scarcely noticeable. They adjust the rheostats for all six tubes, the potentiometer, and the condenser.

LOOP CONCEALED.

The loop is concealed in the cover of the case, and is connected with flexible leads so that the set can be operated with the case either opened or closed.

The loud speaker is especially designed to fit into one end of the case, and a jack is provided for the use of a phone or another loud speaker if desired.

One hundred miles on a loud speaker is given as the range of the set. It is so new to Boston that it has not yet been tried out for any long range, but when used in Palm Beach Fla., it picked up KDKA without difficulty.



J. SHEPARD, 3D'S, PORTABLE SET

This six-tube, loud-speaking week-end case caused considerable excitement on Boston Common when the strains of an orchestra emanated from it on its first appearance in Boston. Just how the makers have built this newest in portable sets is shown above. Also how John Shepard, 3rd, looked carrying the set across the Common.

I put [illegible] tenna as shown in the [illegible] Antenna for a Quaker Oats [illegible] I am restricted for space. WNAC very good and also WEAF. Is there any way in which it could be used for more than one set of phones?—J. M.

It is unlikely that you get more range with only fourteen feet stretch with a crystal set. The antenna that you have looks to be a very good one, except for the use of what you call "inner" wire for the lead-in. Use at least No. 14 for this. The signal corps antenna that was described in the American a few days ago might also be an improvement. Two pairs of phones may be connected in series with a slight diminution of volume.

I have a Super and had wonderful results, getting seventy-six stations in all. Lately it has gone back tions fade, but when I pull out plug and then put it back again stations come in strong for a few minutes. Sometimes I have to press the second dial or some place on the panel to get a station. I cannot get anything above 33. on my dials, while I used to get many above that. How is it that a few stations come in on different readings?—F. F. D.

Probably one of the variable condensers is defective. You will probably also find that the B battery is low. The two dial readings for a single station is very mysterious. The readings you mention for the Hastings, Neb., station seem rather clear for a harmonic, but this may be the explanation.

HOOKUPS FOR TWO CRYSTALS

Two hookups in which both halves of the cycle are used are shown above. Fig. 1 is designed for using two pairs of phones, and when the crystals are evenly matched, a considerable increase in volume over what would be obtained with a single crystal will result. Fig. 2 shows a circuit for a single pair of phones in which two audio-frequency transformers are used.

A crystal detector can never be more than 50 per cent. efficient. This because it uses only one-half the cycle of the incoming wave.

In other words, the function of the crystal is to convert the incoming signals, which oscillate in both directions, to pulsating currents which are undirectional. This it does by cutting off all the energy which passes in one direction.

By using two evenly matched crystals, however, it is possible to get some of the effect of using all the incoming energy. At present this is not by any means 100 per cent. efficient, but an excellent hookup for the use of two phones with crystals can be made.

The crystals should be carefully matched in an ordinary crystal set first, a pair being selected that will give the same signal. The phones must also be of the same ohmage and preferably of the same make.

Note that the detectors are in the opposite direction on each side of the variometer.

Another receiver in which an attempt is made to use both halves of the incoming wave but with a single pair of phones is shown in Figure 2. Here two audio-frequency transformers are used to join the receivers from both crystals and deliver it to the phones.

The secondaries of the two transformers are joined together just as when the ordinary transformers are used for push-pull amplification.

New York Stock Market's Active Issues Rally After Making a Mixed Start

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

(Mr. Forbes will be in Boston from April 21 until April 26. During that time he will fill several speaking engagements and come in close contact with New England problems of business and finances.)

As we grow older, we find that few things count as much as friendship. The person who is poor, but who has a full number of real friends can feel well blessed. The person who is rich, but is without friends cannot but feel poor as age comes along.

This column is inspired by actual experiences and by a desire to prevent the unnecessary straining or breaking of friendships.

* * *

The idea is this: When New Yorkers, either business men or others, go traveling through the country, visiting people in different cities, they often give sincere invitations to come and visit them in the big city.

In the same way, persons in these other cities promise their New York friends that they will come and see them when they next visit New York.

* * *

But what often happens? When a visit to New York is decided upon, a telegram or a letter usually is dispatched to the friend or friends in New York, saying that the writer is about to start for the Big City.

* * *

On reaching New York, the visitor usually finds a lot to engage his attention and thinks little or nothing about the city friends for the first day or two. Then there begins to arise in the visitor more or less resentment that the city friends haven't made a move, haven't even telephoned.

But, as like as not, the visitor neglected to say where he was going to stay in New York.

* * *

When a New Yorker visits another city and sends word in advance, it usually is easy enough for friends there to locate him, because in all likelihood there are only one or two principal hotels, so that it is easy enough to find the new arrival.

* * *

But the visitor to New York often fails to take into the reckoning that it is like looking for a needle in a haystack to try and locate a stranger in the city.

* * *

It is because I have known of this sort of thing happening so very often that I believe it may help to prevent the disrupting of a good many friendships if the facts here outlined are brought to the attention both of New Yorkers and people in other cities.

* * *

Let every person who ever has occasion to visit New York or Chicago or other big city, and who hopes to be called upon by friends there make a mental note of this advice:

Always say which hotel you are going to stay at.

* * *

When you travel round the country, one complaint often heard is that, whereas people in other cities make a point of being cordial to visitors, New Yorkers usually act as if they didn't want to be bothered by calls from out-of-town people.

Now, I believe there used to be a good deal of foundation for this complaint.

But I am absolutely sure that there has been quite a change for the better among New Yorkers. New York has become distinctly more sociable to visitors. Even the busiest of business and financial men—at least the majority of them—now take pride in showing a due amount of courtesy and hospitality to visitors.

* * *

Again, it has become very common for all classes of New York business men to invite out-of-town visitors to lunch either with or without some other friends.

And, of course, the theatres every evening of the week draw hundreds of New Yorkers who are entertaining friends from other places.

* * *

True, New Yorkers do much entertaining in their own homes. The average New Yorker reckons that the visitor from out-of-town would rather go and see a "show" and have dinner or supper at one of the city's swell hotels or restaurant or cabaret resorts. Moreover, only the wealthy in New York can afford homes large enough to permit of any considerable entertaining.

* * *

Happily, there are convincing indications that the attitude of the rest of the country towards New York and New Yorkers is undergoing a change for the better. Sensible New Yorkers do now have a certain sense of responsibility for winning a good name for their city, just as the citizens of smaller places invariably take pride in doing everything within their power to gain for themselves and their city the esteem and good will of outsiders.

* * *

Then, lastly, the heads of big banks and other big establishments in New York are learning that the accumulation of more and more money isn't everything, and that life is rather barren unless it is fruitful in friendships.

BALDWIN DROPS TO FRESH LOW FOR YEAR

There was renewed selling pressure that drove Baldwin Locomotive to a new 1924 low before it rallied and at the same time there were further recessions in oils and sugars, the latter influenced by price slashes for the refined product.

Studebaker rallied better than a point and exhibited steady strength.

U. S. Rubber, Yellow Cab of New York and Stewart-Warner Speedometer sold at fresh 1924 bottoms, off from fractions to 2 points.

There were point or better gains for Republic Steel, Canadian Pacific and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

General Electric added over 2. Woolworth tacked on 4 more points to its spectacular recovery. South Porto Rico Sugar lowered over 4.

National Lead and Sears-Roebuck lost a point each. Norfolk & Western advanced over a point, but did not hold its gain.

There was little change in prices in transactions on the Boston Stock Exchange. Island Creek Coal dropped a point, reflecting the depressed prices for soft coal.

Wall St. Gossip

DISCOUNT rate of new gold discount bank in Germany has been fixed at 10 per cent., says Berlin dispatch.

AGGRESSIVE BUYING for the week would be unexpected in the stock market.

AMERICAN Ship & Commerce Corporation is to issue quarterly statements.

"ONYX" Hosiery, Inc., income statement for three months to March 31, 1924, shows gross profits of $574,609.

CONTINENTAL Motors declared dividend of 20 cents, payable April 30. Last payment was 10 cents in December, 1921.

AMERICAN Sugar Refining has reduced price of refined sugar to 8.10 cents, and to meet competition will quote 8.05 cents.

ALLIS-CHALMERS for 1923 shows $5.95 a share net on common against $4.05 a share in 1922.

NET INCOME of Pullman Co. for 1923, of $15,356,119 was equivalent to $11.38 a share.

DIVIDEND and interest payments during April will total $384,350,000, against $374,280,000 on April, 1923.

TINSLEY LOOKS FOR FAIR TRADE REST OF YEAR

J. F. Tinsley, vice-president and general manager of Crompton & Knowles Loom Works, Worcester, Providence and Philadelphia, tells the financial editor of the Boston American:

"I think we will have a fair volume of business for the remaining months of 1924. There are certain lines, of course, like the textile industry, which are subnormal, but generally speaking, the average is favorable.

"The first quarter of 1924, according to the usual trade indices, was larger that the corresponding quarter of 1923. Building statistics, retail trade figures, bank clearings, car-loadings, all show good business.

"If it were not for the fact that investigations and political agitations have made business sensitive and 'touchy' there would, in my opinion, be a general feeling of business optimism and continuing prosperity for many months to come."

RETAIL HARDWARE STOCKS ARE LIGHT

"Retail stocks are light, and jobbers anticipate that warm spell will bring retailers into the market for substantial orders. Generally speaking, collections are slow," Hardware Age will say this week: "There is a general attitude of watchful waiting in the market, and neither the manufacturer nor the jobber is willing to commit himself very far ahead. Building, however, continues, and the demand for contractors' supplies, builders' hardware and both carpenters and mechanics' tools is strong."

Courteous, Prompt, Accurate Service to All our Patrons All the Time

A Girl Who Is On Her Job

IN one of New England's largest factories, most telephone toll calls are made on a number basis because the private branch exchange operator knows it pays.

Many times a day some executive tells her to get "So-and-So" on the wire. She puts the call through on the number plan. In practically every case, conversation is promptly established with the person desired.

This girl knows her job.

She knows how well number service works. She knows it saves money for her company. She knows there is also a great saving of time. That is why telephone toll calls by number are routine practice in that factory.

Perhaps you have a private branch exchange operator who knows the value of toll calls by number, but who has not quite the initiative to make it standard so long as you ask her merely to "Get So-and-So on the wire."

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

To settle an argument, will you please tell me the weight of the brain?

J. O.

The average weight of the male brain is about 49 ounces and that of the female brain, forty-four ounces.

Is cancer hereditary and what is the cause of it? Mrs. R. B. S.

It is rather a hard question to decide as to whether or not cancer is hereditary and many contradictory views are held to regard to it. Many times, cancer has appeared in several successive generations, but is not generally believed that heredity plays an important role in cancer. In spite of the extensive research which has been made in all parts of the civilized world, the cause of cancer still remains unknown. Many theories have been advanced and much information of great value has been discovered for the treatment of this disease. It is usually a disease of middle life and advanced life.

Please explain the difference between the locks of hand from a vein and hand from an artery. B. C. P.

I am fifty years of age and my physician has told me that I have high pressure. Have been told that this is a very serious matter. Is there anything to be done to tell me exactly what causes it? I thought I would ask you if you will tell me. Mrs. T. F.

The blood is under constant pressure, carrying in different parts of the circulatory system. The heart propels the blood into the arteries. From the main arteries the blood branches go to all parts of the body. These branches are divided into smaller branches or capillaries and join one another to make a new system of vessels, the veins. These become progressively larger and by them the blood is returned to the heart. The capillaries offer the greatest resistance to the flow of blood from the heart. As a result of these two forces, the blood is under considerable pressure. This is the "internal" blood pressure—the tension between the heart and the capillaries—that is ordinarily referred to when we speak of blood pressure.

Baby Clothes in Demand

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will kindly send me name and address of some needy mother, I will gladly send her some baby clothes for a new born baby. I have also two ladies' dresses size about 40 bust. I will be glad to send some needy person, one serge and one voile.

MRS. G. H. S.

Thank you. Baby clothes are always needed and we are asking you to send yours to Mrs. J. O'B. who is expecting the stork. We have also sent you the address of Mrs. R. D. who wears size 40.

Offers Carpet Sweeper

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a blue suit, size 36, and some shirt waists and a bathrobe to give away. Also a carpet sweeper. Please have some one call for them. MRS. E. C. 2.

Thank you. We have asked Mrs. G. G. 2 to call for the clothing and will hold your carpet sweeper for replies.

Appreciation

Editor Helping Hand:

Again I want to thank you for the great help I received. Mrs. D. of Dorchester, a most splendid lady, who lost her lovely nine-year-old boy in an accident gave me all his things and it is enough to keep my two boys dressed for a long time. Another kind lady, Mrs. B. sent me a dollar and a lot of new cloth to make dresses for myself and little girl. Mrs. S. of Marlboro is going to send me a cradl for the baby. I would be so happy if I could get a carriage as he has not been out since he was born, only twice to the doctor. Please don't think I am greedy or expect too much as I don't mean to be, but if you hear of a carriage and think I deserve it, please remember me.

MRS. E. A. J.

We can't publish all the "thank-you letters" we receive but it is nice to know how much the generosity of the "Helping-Handers" is appreciated. Personally, we think Mrs. R. A. J. deserves a carriage and hope she gets one.

Has Some Left

Editor Helping Hand:

I have just shipped boxes of clothing to the addresses you gave me and still have many things left. I would like the address of Mrs. J. O'N. if she has not already been supplied as the things I have would come in handy for children the age of hers, especially the little twin girls two years old. Trusting I am not trying your patience too much by. MRS. A. A. H.

Thank you again. Our patience is never tried by those who "come again." As Mrs. J. O'N. had generous response we are sending you the address of Mrs. H. E. G. who also has twin girls two years old.

For 'Worried Grandma'

Editor Helping Hand:

Enclosed is one dollar for Worried Grandma. Would like also the address of the other grandmother who asked for the patchwork in the paper March 26th. MRS. A. S.

Thank you. We have forwarded the dollar to Worried Grandma and hope she is not quite so worried now. We have also sent you Mrs. M. E. P.'s address as you requested.

COOLIDGE HAS 494 OF THE 556 VOTES NEEDED

Chicago, April 15 (A.P.).—About half the delegates to the Republican National Convention have been selected, and with them managers of the pre-convention campaign in behalf of President Coolidge claim 494 instructed and favorable delegates, with 558 necessary to nominate.

Approximately 200 additional delegates will be selected in four Eastern States during the remainder of April, New Jersey and Pennsylvania selecting 51 and 79 respectively, April 22, and Massachusetts and Ohio adding 39 and 33 a week later.

According to James W. Good, Western manager of the Coolidge forces, the President's candidacy is expected to fare so well that before May 1, forty days before the opening of the national convention, the Coolidge delegations will total well more than 650 definitely instructed or avowedly favorable.

Twenty-eight States and Territories have selected 544 of the 1,109 delegates who will sit at Cleveland beginning June 10. Of them, according to Mr. Good, 317 are instructed to support the President for the nomination, and 170 others are uninstructed but publicly on record as favorable to the Coolidge candidacy.

Thirty-four delegates are bound to the candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, 14 are instructed for Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California and 3 are in the free lance class.

We Assert the Right to Protect Ourselves From Yellow Peril

Japanese Exclusion Necessary to America, Says Mr. Hearst

April 14, 1924.

TO THE EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN:

I WISH you would have a strong editorial based on Premier Hughes' excellent article in the Sunday, April 13, March of Events Section of our Sunday paper and on the bill now before the Senate for Japanese exclusion. I am strongly in favor of Japanese exclusion, to prevent these Orientals swarming into the country and absolutely overrunning it.

We should prevent their overrunning our country just as the Australians have prevented their overrunning Australia.

We want our country not merely for the white races, but for Occidental standards of wages, standards of living and conditions of labor.

The greatest achievements of Occidental civilization are its high standards of morals and standards of living, and it should be realized that standards of morals are to a certain extent dependent on standards of living.

The ability to take care of the family comfortably, to send the children to school, to maintain the household on an independent and self-respecting basis, all make for better moral standards.

We do not want in this country the demoralizing competition of low Oriental labor conditions, poor standards of living, and contaminating Oriental morals.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

WILLIAM MORRIS HUGHES, lately Prime Minister of Australia, is a fearless leader of the white race. His has been a dominating voice at the Conference of the British Dominions with the Mother Country, when the Australian Premier has been free to tell British Ministers that Australia would keep her soil free of the yellow race. Anglo-Japanese Alliance or no Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

Mr. Hughes has been going through the United States and Canada telling Americans and Canadians in no uncertain language that they must wake up to the fact that they have a problem identical with Australia's: The retention of these three great areas of land—two entire continents—for the children of the white race.

Just at the time that Mr. Hughes is here to tell us that his little nation of six million people does not fear to enact laws excluding Japan's fifty million, we, too, are on the verge of legislation excluding Japanese. This legislation has already passed the House of Representatives as a part of the new Immigration Bill. Exclusion has been voted by the Senate. The clause which affects the Japanese is as follows:

No alien ineligible to citizenship shall be admitted to the United States.

On the face of it, nothing is more reasonable than this provision of the law. What could be gained by permitting to be built up in the United States colonies of those who cannot, under the law, become naturalized citizens, and must therefore owe allegiance to another government?

It is intended to apply only to Japanese coolies, laborers whom we will not suffer to increase and break down our American standards of living. Elsewhere the bill makes ample provision for the admission of students, tourists and business men. We welcome trade with Japan. But we assert the right to protect ourselves from being swamped by a flood of Japanese immigrants incapable of assimilation and ineligible to citizenship.

The wonder is that this reasonable provision was not put into our laws much earlier. We omitted it in order to save the susceptibilities of the Japanese. Coolies were supposed to be excluded by the operation of the secret Root-Takahira agreement, concluded under President Roosevelt's administration.

It has not sufficed. The people of the Pacific Coast who alone know the Japanese peril, insist that the Root-Takahira "gentlemen's" agreement be translated into law, known and understood and observed by all.

The people on the Pacific Coast do not find that the secret agreement has worked to keep Japanese laborers out of the United States. They will be kept out by the exclusion legislation of the new law, which will put an end to the picture-bride evil on the coast, and stop the influx of Japanese into the Hawaiian Islands, saving this part of the United States also for white people. Today the Japanese can go into the island without restriction, and have practically gained control there.

The day before this Immigration Bill, with its Japanese exclusion provision, passed the House, the Japanese Ambassador protested and his letter was forwarded by Secretary of State Hughes to the Senate.

The Japanese Ambassador warned of "GRAVE CONSEQUENCES WHICH THE ENACTMENT OF THE MEASURE WOULD INEVITABLY BRING UPON THE OTHERWISE HAPPY AND MUTUALLY AND ADVANTAGEOUS RELATIONS BETWEEN OUR TWO COUNTRIES."

Secretary of State Hughes backs up the Japanese Ambassador and says that this provision, directed against the Japanese, might undo the good work of the Washington Conference.

It would be an additional reason to pass this provision to the Immigration Bill if it could abrogate the Four-Power Treaty. But there is no chance that England or Japan will let us abrogate that document in which we agree to fight their future wars in the Pacific—or the Naval Disarmament Treaty, whereby we forever threw away our naval preponderance and the ability to defend our possessions or our rights in the Far East.

It would be interesting to know what would have been the answer to Ambassador Hanihara, if we had had the Australian Hughes to write our State document. One can imagine that in ringing words he would have told the Japanese Ambassador that America's domestic concerns were America's affair and would be decided by America alone, upon American grounds.

It is we who are to decide what kind of people are to come to our shores, and we—not the Japanese government — will henceforth be charged with the task of carrying out the immigration policies on which we decide.

And if this must be told the Japanese government in plain, blunt language such as the Australian Hughes would use, the sooner it is told the better.

LISTEN, WORLD! By ELSIE ROBINSON

OF course you've read about the John Seymour Winslows of New York, who are going to take a year's vacation from each other after twelve years of happy married life. About 999 editorials have been written on that subject and here's another one. By a peculiar coincidence, on the very day the Winslows broke into print the Defferdings broke in also. The Winslows have been married for twelve years and are taking a vacation. The Defferdings have been married for twenty years and have just gotten a divorce. There doesn't seem to be much similarity in the cases, but wait a bit—

The Winslows are temporarily separating because they have come to a point where they "see nothing but each other." This, they say, is an unwholesome mood—it leads to narrowness—it will eventually result in the death of love. Whereupon the conservative section of society rises up and tells the Winslows what it thinks of them in no complimentary terms.

"Death of love! Stuff and nonsense!" snort the conservatives. "If you really loved each other you COULDN'T separate for a year."

But just as the conservatives seem to be grabbing the silver trophy along comes old Bill Defferding with his little argument. Bill married his Ann twenty years ago. They have taken no vacations from each other—no, indeedy. Ann was a good wife. Bill was a good husband. Until all of a sudden Bill found that he was fifty. Fifty, with the trail beginning to wind down the hill. And all the years since he was thirty spent looking at Ann and the home that he and Ann built. Not that Ann and the home weren't pretty good things to look at—but the trail was beginning to wind down the hill. Pretty soon there wouldn't be any more trail. Or any more Bill. So all of a sudden when he was fifty Bill got the wanderlust. And Ann got a divorce. There's at least one answer to the question, "Do domestic vacations pay?" Do you suppose those two old fools would be getting a divorce now if they had fed their taste for adventure as the years went by? I don't.

We were lovers once, you and I, and the rest of the chain sang. We roved when we were single. We roved when we were wed. We roved as soon as we could brace our lusty tummies on our dixie crunked legs and toddle down the forest trail. It was a hunger born in us, like the need to breathe and eat and sleep and mate. It's born in us yet. We still can't pass a brush-grown forest trail without a tickling of our noses and an itching of our calves. We were meant to go down that forest trail and our bodies know it, though we told them nay. We'd be richer individuals and stranger, merrier, kinder pals if we could go. AND AS SURE AS GOD MAKES LITTLE APPLES, WE'LL PAY IN POVERTY OF SPIRIT IF WE DON'T GO.

There's the reason for old Bill's wanderlust, and for the Winslows' separation. It isn't a criminal urge. It doesn't indicate a lack of love. It simply indicates a need of life. Taken in time, indulged in moderation, taking a vacation is but the trail was beginning to wind down the hill. Pretty soon there wouldn't be any more trail. Or any more Bill. So all of a sudden when he was fifty Bill got the wanderlust. And Ann got a divorce. There's at least one answer to the question, "Do domestic vacations pay?" Do you suppose those two old fools would be getting a divorce now if they had fed their taste for adventure as the years went by? I don't.

THE unhappy are the undisciplined.

The joy of life does not come from having strong desires and, eating them, for then the proud eagles turn to foul harpies, but from the clever control of desires, to keep them ever green, that their edge be not dulled by repletion, nor their force spent in excess.

The incompetent are the undisciplined.

Any human being has natural gifts enough to succeed, if he will practice, train himself, and keep the rules of the game. Success is easier than failure, to the disciplined.

The chronic invalids are the undisciplined. To be roasted out of bed at sunup, to have to walk a mile to breakfast, to be kept at work all day and to go to bed tired as a lumberjack at sundown, would cure nine-tenths of all the great army of complainers.

The disillusioned are the undisciplined.

Those whose light has gone out, who have given up, who have lost hope, who have no friends, and who want to go out in the garden and eat worms—they are simply the dumps and frumps of the race, they have never taken themselves in hand. A year in the workhouse would do them good.

The unbeautiful are the undisciplined.

'Tis not the peachy cheek and lissome form delights us most and longest, young lady. The brave, faithful, and controlled soul, looking out through your eyes, this it is that is a joy forever.

The world-weary are the undisciplined.

And the sad, and bad.

And the bored.

Spunk up! Get hold of yourself. Quit whining. Find something hard to do, and do it.

Fall in line. Keep step. Left, right, left, right, don't lag, come on, till you get over that feeling that you're going to drop in your tracks, and you get your second wind, and the tides of self-confidence and reserve strength begin to course through your veins.

I saw some raw recruits last Summer at one of the cantonments being put through their drill. I am not a military man, but I wished that every human being in the nation could have some such discipline, till the self-pity and the bitterness and the gloom and the mulligrubs were cleaned out.

Discipline! That's what your poet with a stomach-ache, and your idler with an excuse, and your child that's a nuisance, and your scolding parson, and your lackadaisical miss, and your trifling young man, and all the other rots and spots of humanity need.

It was unfair to discipline only those few million young men that we sent or prepared to send to the war. Won't somebody now draft the rest of us, put us through a course of sprouts, and do something to help our white livers?

For there is no joy, no triumph of life, no health, no goodness of heart nor zest of spirit, without discipline.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON GLORY OF MOTION

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

AS the Spring opens, on every fair Sunday and holiday I see from my window in the suburbs multiplying streams of automobiles pouring countryward. One imagines the mighty city depopulating itself—and so it is, temporarily. It sends out every hour, on cushioned wheels, behind purring motors, enough people to make up a good-sized "country city."

The faces and attitudes of many of the riders express plainly their delight and joy in the glory of motion. But the auto is a psychological analyst. It distinguishes between the timid and the bold, the thoughtless and the heedful, the selfish and the magnanimous, the takers of chances and the masters of chance.

"The glory of motion" is one of Thomas De Quincey's phrases, though it suggests itself instantly to all who are carried along swiftly, with a subdued sense of underlying danger. The psychological reaction of rapid physical movement is a universal phenomenon. As a fast revolving paper disk becomes a buzz-saw that will cut wood, so the rush of a speeding automobile hardens, fixes and sharpens the driver's mind and, to an extent, the minds of all who go with him. A particular sense of independence of extraneous things arises and this constitutes the glory of motion. When it becomes excessive or is unregulated, it gives rise to the "speed-demon."

The immense mental influence of pure velocity is demonstrated by the fact, which may be observed on any auto trip, that many riders find far more pleasure in the speed with which they are carried through a landscape than in those elements of rural beauty and picturesqueness that attract the attention of pedestrians, and of others who have time to notice and appreciate details. This is not, in itself, a thing to be blamed, for the pleasure that swift motion gives is undoubtedly of a high and elevating character. Like the sight of the starry heavens, it cuts off the shackles of the mind and lifts it out of the rut of commonplace impressions. It furnishes a new enjoyment which is all the more delightful because it is not measurable by the standards of ordinary pleasures, and cannot easily be analyzed or described.

The automobile has carried the glory of motion to its highest power for the mass of mankind. The joy of aeroplaning, for aught that I know, may have a still higher exponent, but it will be some time before the tens of millions who now whirl, with the speed of birds, over thousands of miles of country roads, can transport to cloud-level with the sky pilots.

It is curious to trace the development of the reign of velocity in human psychology, and to see how sudden its latest ascent has been. When De Quincey wrote his masterly piece, the English mail coach furnished the most notable and startling example of the glory of motion. For thousands of years before there had been nothing superior to that. The Roman chariots were all horse-drawn. De Quincey mentions as one of the elements of the glory of motion, experienced by the rider on a mail coach, "the animal beauty and power so often displayed in the class of horses selected for this mail service." But far more powerful, because more mysterious, is the influence over the mind exercised by the softly purring motor car, with its polished unanimal-like body, developing the force of forty horses, and outstripping at need the "iron horse" itself.

SPEAK PLEASANTLY OVER THE TELEPHONE TO YOUR WIFE

Mr. Husband, how do you talk to your wife over the telephone? Are you short, cross and even disrespectful?

After your telephone conversation to your wife, has someone in the office remarked, "I thought you were talking to your wife, for you would hardly dare to talk to anyone else in that way."

One experience of this sort ought to teach you to change your habitual telephone tone of voice toward your wife.

Why not treat your wife with as much respect as you would anyone else over the telephone?

Why yell "all right" to any woman over the telephone, your own wife or anyone's else, when she announces her name?

Courtesy should begin at home, and it is due to every woman, especially, and most men.

Of course, there are some men whom you must be short with, or they might have to be sat upon harder, since they have not sense enough to know how far they can go; but your wife, man, do not leave in her heart a mental picture of displeasure and irritability after you have talked with her over the telephone.
